Harvesting Ice in the 1940s. Picture at lower right shows how ice was stored. Ice was harvested from Waskesiu Lake and stored in sawdust. Blocks of ice were delivered to the campground, which today is the day use area. The campground was home to over 500 shack tents from the 1930s to 60s. These were summer cabins that were put up each spring and taken down each fall. They had no electricity so people used ice boxes. Cottage owners used ice boxes until they had electricity.
