Supporting British Columbia

Canada's strength is built on strong partnerships with provinces and territories, and British Columbia plays an important role in our country's economic and social success.

The Government of Canada is committed to delivering concrete results that matter to British Columbians – investing in housing and community infrastructure, supporting businesses and key industries, strengthening trade and supply chains, advancing major energy and critical minerals projects, protecting the environment, and creating new economic opportunities for communities across the province.

These measures demonstrate the government's commitment to strengthening the partnership with British Columbia, building a stronger and more resilient economy, creating good jobs and economic opportunities, improving quality of life, and supporting strong communities across the province.

Canada-British Columbia Cooperative Prosperity Agreement

On July 2, 2026, British Columbia and Canada signed the Canada-British Columbia Cooperative Prosperity Agreement. This includes a number of climate and conservation initiatives, including the following.

- Northwest Critical Minerals and Conservation Corridor to harness Canada's critical minerals needed for the development of clean technology, while protecting the region's exceptional natural value, consistent with our 30x30 goals.
- Clean Electricity and Watershed protection: to both advance clean electricity and protect the waters essential to life and prosperity.
 - This includes Wind turbine transport and manufacturing for a sustainable, low carbon, economic future.
- Upholding the oil tanker moratorium, oil spill recovery and Whale protections to keep our coast and marine ecosystems safe.
- Flood Mitigation with investment for integrated infrastructure and ecological planning.
