From the back cover:

All she wanted was a new job, but she got more than she bargained for...

For twenty years, Ellie O'Neill balanced her defense contractor career with being a single parent. Then, ready for a change, she accepts a position managing a strategic client, the U.S. Navy. Her request for a security clearance triggers an investigation into a tragic family secret.

When Ellie was five years old, she thought she saw something fall from the sky. The incident was reported to the U.S. military, who searched her family farm but found nothing. Soon after, her mother loses her U.S. Treasury job and disappears from their lives forever.

Ellie courageously pits her problem-solving skills against a powerful, corrupt politician looking to safeguard his haunting cover-up.
