

Paul McClung

Vice President Internal Audit

Paul McClung is vice president internal audit at WestRock, where he leads the development and deployment of internal audit capabilities and resources across WestRock's global footprint. Paul is a member of the enterprise compliance committee and led the integration of the RockTenn and MeadWestvaco's internal audit functions when the two companies merged in 2015 to form WestRock.

Prior to joining RockTenn in 2014, Paul was responsible for the internal audit, enterprise risk management, and risk management functions at Carter's. Paul also led internal audit at Mueller Water Products. He began his career working as an internal audit service provider at Arthur Andersen LLP and Deloitte & Touche LLP.

He currently serves on the Atlanta Chapter of the Institute of Internal Auditor's Board of Governors and previously served for seven years in officer roles, including chief financial officer, chief operating officer, president, and chairman of the board. Paul received the IIA Atlanta Chapter Mulcahy Leadership Award in the initial class for 2007 for his volunteer efforts towards the IIA Atlanta Chapter. Paul also serves on the Louisiana State University (LSU) Center Internal Audit Advisory Board as well as the Kennesaw Status University Internal Audit Center Advisory Board.

Paul received his bachelor of science degree in Accounting from LSU. He is a Certified Internal Auditor and a Certified Information Systems Auditor.

