

Scott Stevenson
Chief Audit Officer

Emory University

Scott Stevenson serves as the chief audit officer for Emory University and Emory Healthcare, leading its Internal Audit Division (IAD). He is responsible for the assessment of enterprise- and entity-level risk, and for the development and execution of work plans focused on enhancing Emory's risk mitigation strategies and business controls that support and advance Emory's core missions of education, research, and patient care. The chief audit officer reports to the Audit and Compliance Committee of the Board of Trustees and to the executive vice president of Business and Administration.

Before joining Emory in 2005, Stevenson served as a director at Bon Secours Health System and a consultant with Ernst & Young and PricewaterhouseCoopers. He spent a year in Savannah as the chief audit officer for the Memorial Health System. Mr. Stevenson is a recognized leader in the audit profession and is currently serving as the President Elect for the Institute of Internal Auditors Atlanta Chapter, and as a Board member with the Association of HealthCare Internal Auditors. He is a certified public accountant and a certified internal auditor, with more than 25 years of accounting and auditing experience. Mr. Stevenson earned a BS from Wake Forest University and an MBA from Averett University.
