

DISPATCH PRIMING

The Dispatch Priming Course serves as an educational platform to introduce the concept of dispatch priming, a relatively novel idea that finds its roots in the well-researched psychological principle of priming, a multifaceted and complex topic.

Research data suggests evidence that field personnel may be negatively influenced by dispatch priming. By developing a deeper understanding of the cognitive processes of both officers and dispatchers, the course intends to introduce the concept of priming.

While dispatch is not the sole cause of all misapplications of force, the training emphasizes the significant role that dispatchers may have in these situations.

The course is designed to inform dispatchers on how their approach, technique, and manner of communication could potentially influence officers' decision-making, possibly leading to use-of-force encounters.

Online Class Dates
0800-1700

December 6, 2023 CCN 1301-31042-23-002
January 10, 2024 CCN 1301-31042-23-003
January 24, 2024 CCN 1301-31042-23-004
February 5, 2024 CCN 1301-31042-23-005
February 14, 2024 CCN 1301-31042-23-006
February 29, 2024 CCN 1301-31042-23-007
April 6, 2024 CCN 1301-31042-23-008
April 22, 2024 CCN 1301-31042-23-009
May 29, 2024 CCN 1301-31042-23-010
June 7, 2024 CCN 1301-31042-23-011
June 20, 2024 CCN 1301-31042-23-012

Register Online
$199