

The Sacred Simplicity of the Sabbath

Pastor Vaughn, Chapter One, The Restoration Mandate

Elijah comes to uncover the lies.
He is not a reformer.
For the Sabbath, dear brothers and sisters,
he is a truth-restorer!

As the world sleeps on
unaware of its coming fate, Elijah's voice is heard
through the corridors of faith.

It comes not as a whisper,
but a thunderous roar!
Self-secure foundations are shaken
down to their very core!

The Sabbath is not a burden
with rules to be obeyed.
It's an escape from the chaos of life
when realignment with heaven is made.

As the war clouds gather signaling Yahshua's return, Elijah's voice loudly proclaims
what many have yet to learn.

The Sabbath has been confused with a badge of sectarian pride
or a rod of religious tyranny
designed to keep us in stride.

But Yahweh sanctified it
to bless His people with rest.
He never intended for it to become a weapon or spiritual test.

He wants it to be a day
of relationship and restoration
when heaven and earth will meet in mutual adoration!

It is a covenant marker
of the faithfulness of Yahweh.
It's a holy sign between us that we are following His way.

There is a great awakening
among those willing to hear and return to the ancient paths
as Messiah's coming draws near!
