It started from a thought...

...and the thought
became a book...

...and took shape into the paperback edition and the eBook format!

How did PUN-TASTIC WAYS FOR BRIGHTER DAYS begin?

Dominique Liongson loves to hear and laugh at a good joke. Over the years she had several attempts to retell jokes to her mates, with the goal of enjoying the laughter with them, and to feel great together.

No success. Within those attempts, Dominique got lost with the sequence of the jokes, which meant zero laughter, and it felt far from great. So, she tried reading and listening to jokes, while picking up their patterns. Somehow, joke reading and joke listening worked to make joke retelling easier; they helped yield buckets and buckets of laughter.

Then Dominique accepted a challenge to write her own jokes. After years of borrowing jokes from other sources, she felt it was time to work from her own creative mind instead. By 2017, she grabbed a pen, and wrote one riddle pun a day for a year. Yes, she did this for 365 days.

With the cooperation of Dominique and the publishing team, PUN-TASTIC WAYS FOR BRIGHTER DAYS is her bundle-of-joy book that came to life. Now ready for you to read and decide — whether to roll your eyes, or to crack up laughing.

That was how PUN-TASTIC WAYS FOR BRIGHTER DAYS began.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Dominique Liongson is an artist in the field of following recipes of artistic skills and from there, creating her own recipes.

From either following the rules to the letter, or breaking some so she can create her own style, Dominique's art involves projects with clever use of three-dimensional (3D) crafts, 2D visuals, and 1D written words.

As for her intellectual side, Dominique believes IQ level and educational attainment do not matter. She believes that how the intelligence is used, is far more important than its rating or numerical value.

In the case of PUN-TASTIC WAYS FOR BRIGHTER DAYS, Dominique used her witty brain to complete this book project with clean funny riddles. She added the following elements to fill up the reader's light and darkness: 1) love to a hungry heart; 2) joy to a suicidal soul; and 3) peace to a mace-sprayed mind.

BOOK REVIEW

Reviewed by Michelle Stanley for Readers' Favorite

“If life gives you twiddles, indulge in some riddles.” Pun-Tastic Ways for Brighter Days is a riddle-pun book by Dominique Liongson. What can architects build with a rice cooker? Low rice and high rice apartments. What is a written contest for prisoners? A con-test. Where in France do sardines go camping? In Cannes (cans). Where does the Transylvanian Count Dracula order his pencils? In Pencil-Vania of the USA (Pennsylvania). Why are carnivores religious? Because they prey before they eat (pray). Why did Helen of Troy serve heaps of mutton at noon? Because her face had lunched a thousand sheep-s (launched...ships). How do you unlock a kitchen? With a cook-key (cookie). Which magazine did Looney Tunes Elmer Fudd buy to solve his garden drama? Weeder’s Digest (Reader’s Digest).

Dominique Liongson obviously comes from a family who always tries to outdo each other telling the best jokes. Retelling jokes didn’t produce a lot of laughs, only a lot of embarrassment for the author. She was then inspired to have a crack at penning her own rib-ticklers when her younger cousin began writing jokes. Pun-Tastic Ways for Brighter Days is a collection of original riddle-pun jokes that Dominique Liongson spent 365 days crafting. They are divided into seven witty categories that are titled What; Where; When; Which; Who; Why; How. You can smile, roll your eyes or laugh out loud with this amusing play on words and riddle-puns, which is very family-friendly. Some will even become favorites of kids who hear them for the first time.

This is a great little book to entertain you for a few minutes or pick you up if you feel a bit down. I have no idea how the author comes up with so many clever word associations but it sure makes for fun reading.

I, the author, gives myself a big hug to keep insisting to stick to the bright side of life no matter what. Otherwise, this joke book would cease to exist. Thanks for the commitment, Dominique Liongson!

Beverley Dominique is a wordsmith, using a few words to stir up a chuckle here, and an outright belly laugh there. Looking forward to her next issue.

neat little book! best enjoyed within reach at your favorite spot in the living room if you need a quick smirk. My kid is 11 years old and is getting into reading, and its hard to get kids nowadays to do that! when you get the hang of it, it tricks young readers into being more clever. the smartest gags are the subtlest ones, and I love how it enhances her sense of humor.

Pun-Tastic fits the bill. bite sized snickers to make my daughter giggle :-P

Loads of laughter for the family to share. My 14 year-old enjoyed it the most.

MORE TESTIMONIALS

This collection showcases Dominique's prolific creative mind. She's a pun factory! Kudos to you, Dominique, and keep them coming!

(D.M. - San Francisco, CA, USA)

Just like an experienced pilot, these jokes land smoothly every time. ★★★★★

(G. Nevins - Parañaque, Philippines)

I have never seen a book full of such thought provoking humour. So many ways of thinking about things that no one has thought of. A unique mind in action.

(Louise Moriarty - Poet - Tugun, QLD, Australia)

Very good play on words in the English language showing mastery of phonetics with subtle humor. Well done. Congratulations!

(Pacita H. Monteleone - Teacher - Metuchen, NJ, USA)

If you think puns are pun-ny heres the book for you! 365 puns and brain teasers to keep you and your family occupied every day of the year.

(F. Trapaga - Sydney, NSW, Australia)

Dominique's book reminds of me jokes I would crack to my younger sister when we were kids. The lines evoke child-like wit, a form of entertainment that is lost — and very much welcome — to the busy and anxious adult mind. I foresee this book as a useful read while bonding with children.
