Nor-Cal’s “Solo Stringer” Dean Cook plays the Johnson’s Alexander Valley Winery
Robert Morton, Tuesday, September 21st.

This September 21st, at 7 PM, our frequent club concert reviewer Dean Cook plays for the Sonoma Valley OC at Johnson’s Alexander Valley Winery, Route 128, Healdsburg. As an open venue, we’re welcome to join and partake—it promises to be a fun time.

Dean is an able writer, and I thought I’d let him reveal a small example of what a Theatre Organ Artist goes through in the “blind date” phase of getting acquainted with a new instrument. What follows is Dean describing his first impressions as he is trying out this Robert Morton in its winery setting, and thinking about what will work for the upcoming concert.

“Just returned from a trip to Alexander Valley, to practice at Johnson’s. The place did not in the slightest resemble the mental picture I had conjured up. To call the place “rustic” (continued on Page Three)

Nor-Cal Chapter Picnic Sunday, September 26

Plan for a happy time to enjoy the company of other Nor-Cal members. Ron Bingaman and his wife have kindly invited Nor-Cal to have a picnic at their home in Blackhawk on Sunday September 26th at Noon. They have asked that members bring some folding chairs if possible and to carpool when possible as parking is somewhat limited. They do not have barbecue facilities, so cold food will have to be the menu for the day with guests bringing their own picnic lunch. They live in a gated community, so as guests enter the area, a guard will be at the gate. Those attending are to tell the gatekeeper that they are here for the “ATOS Nor-Cal Chapter Picnic”. After lunch there will be open-console at Ron’s “George Wright Series” Allen Organ which he has just acquired. If you have any questions, Ron’s phone number is: 925-736-4512. Ron and his wife have their home in Blackhawk, a community in Danville near the Mount Diablo State Park. Directions: From 680, coming from either the north or south, exit at Sycamore Valley Rd. and head East. (see map, next page.)

After a mile or so, the name of the road changes to Camino Tassajara - continue on Camino Tassajara for about another 5.3 miles. At the intersection with Crow Canyon Road, turn left (North) onto Blackhawk Rd. Go straight through two stop lights, and at the next stop sign, turn right into the gated community. This road into the Blackhawk community is Blackhawk Drive. Continue past the stop and up and then down the hill. At the

Closing Chord

We sadly report the passing on August 31st of Ray Warner, a long-time Chapter member and former Board member.

Ray will be remembered by BCT concertgoers as the friendly man whose lapel pin showed a moving marquee message of greeting. Ray and Mary, his constant partner and wife, made every concert attendee feel welcome. Our thoughts are with his family, especially his wife of 59 years, Mary. (Because they were such a team, we are using a picture of them together, not just Ray alone.)

While Ray’s bright smile and happy disposition reflected his love of life, life was not always easy. Folio as a child meant a long struggle, but he recovered to serve in World War II, and to become an outstanding dancer with Mary.

Ray retired from Pacific Bell after 35 years in order to care for the youngest of their three children when he became terminally ill.

Although Ray was involved in more activities than we can mention here, his love of music, dancing, and organs will always be remembered by Nor-Cal.

bottom of the hill is Redwood Drive where you turn left (not a cross street - watch for signs). Ron’s house is 837 Redwood Drive and is on the left. Plan to park on the right side of the road.

Many thanks to Ron and his wife for opening their home and offering the opportunity to try out their new Allen.

New Members

We welcome David C. Dillon of San Jose and David Dalton of San Francisco to the ranks.

We thank Darrell K. Fluehr of Lincoln, Nebraska, for his donation. We mis-identified him in the previous issue.

Memories of

Everett Nourse

Jeanne Nourse

My father, Everett Nourse, was staff organist at the Fox Theatre in San Francisco from 1944 until its closing in 1963.

Born in Chico, CA, and raised in Oakland, his musical journey began with piano lessons about age 7. He was composing short piano pieces by age 9 and played his first theatre organ at age 18. From then on he was hooked, and managed to play many of the organs in the Bay Area in the next few years.

The other love of his life was Louise, the girl across the street, whom he married in 1936. During my childhood I remember many times watching him play an informal concert, seeing Mom walk by, and hearing him segue into a version of “Louise.” After her passing in 1992, he did not play the song again. I was pleased to find it among those selected for this recording.

A few years before his death, he called me to say he’d been listening to some early Fox recordings and was amazed by their vibrancy and beauty. Knowing him to be an extremely humble man, I was surprised to hear him wax so eloquently about his own playing. Then he said, “I played with such lushestess and fire, I must have been really feeling in love.”

For me this characterizes so much of his music - his capacity for love, humor, strength, beauty, and generosity. He was a gift to all who knew and loved him. I would like to thank Dick Clay and Frank Bindt for all their help in the sharing of his music.

Help Nor-Cal Become a Major Bay Area Institution

(Dave Goggin, who has been part of the BCT organ crew, has been working with the Nor-Cal Board on starting a new program to involve chapter members in efforts to use personal contact to boost awareness and appreciation of our marvelous BCT Wurlitzer. What follows is a “prospectus” on how those of us who have pride in our Chapter’s instrument can team together to make the community at large aware of what we have given to the Bay Area music scene.)

As we enter the new millennium, the Bay Area is increasingly seen by locals as well as people from all over the globe as a major technological, and cultural center. On any given weekend you’ll find groups dancing tango, practicing aikido, playing the zither, building boats, painting murals, faceting gems, making movies, and ‘doing many other’ interesting things. And, our region boasts an incredible ethnic diversity and a larger than average proportion of smart, energetic, and fun-loving people of all ages.

Only one thing is missing—widespread public appreciation for the pipe organ, its music, and its technology.

But, with your help, that can change! It’s high time to start aggressively promoting our art form and giving the Theater Organ the visibility, respect, and public adulation it deserves.

I am asking members of Nor-Cal to join me in an unprecedented publicity campaign. We’ll take it one step at a time, first letting people in the neighborhood know what we’re up to. By collaborating with UC Berkeley people, area merchants, and local politicians we’ll become visible. We’ll find out where to advertise our concerts and events where they’ll grab the public’s imagination, and who can help us make it happen. We’ll develop an up-to-date publicity image and we’ll find ways to educate thousands of people about who we are, what we do, why we are so wild about Theatre Organs and the people who build them and make music on them.

If you’d like to see Nor-Cal become a major performing arts organization and repository of organ lore in the Bay Area, please contact me (415) 567-6773 or email—dave65536@earthlink.net.

Together, we can make it happen.

For the Nor-Cal Theater Organ Society, the future is only just beginning and the opportunities for growth and excitement are boundless!

so many ways, so it’s fun to peer into the mind of an artist at the pre-concert first meeting between him and the instrument.

What follows is Dean Cook’s words would be an understatement! But inside an apparently run-down barn was a little jewel for the T.O. fanatic…a very colorful, very loud 3/10 Robert-Morton. “Loud” when played Full Ensemble, but it contains some quite pretty combinations.

“Cosmetically, it’s a mess. The keytops are wearing off, leaving bare wood for most of the playing range for Accomp and Great, and the bottom octave of the pedals bounce like mad! If you have the cymbal on in the pedal, and just tap low F, you get about 4 strikes on the cymbal!”

“But, it looks much worse than it sounds. Dreadful at first, things started to come back as I played, until a fairly big ensemble emerged: one that will be quite cohesive if it gets tuned before the program. The pedal problem must be addressed, however.

I think it liked being played; I suspect it doesn’t get played often (from the console). ...These instruments are amazing...the more I played, the more “dead” notes started to come back (that could be because of the Morton chests), and the more stable the tuning became. They’re just like people...the more you work them, the more cooperative they become! It should be a fun program.”

Thank you, Dean. For those interested in attending, the venue location is 8333 St. Highway 128, Healdsburg, CA 95448, Phone (707) 433-2319. We’ve printed a map in the next column to help you find the place.

You can also hear Dean perform closer to home—he plays the Wurlitzer regularly at Angelino’s in San Jose, and also plays with a band on an electronic instrument at Wooham Lounge on Stevens Creek in Santa Clara.

The word organ is from the Greek word organon, meaning “an instrument, implement, engine.”

Other organs include organ gun—a musket with several barrels that fire all at once; organ of Corti—a part of the ear; organ harmonium—a very loud harmonica; organ grinder; barrel organ; et al.

The original organ was the syrinx, Pan’s pipe

The earliest organs were hollow stems of river reeds.

Ancient organs with stops of different pitches are pictured in primitive drawings and carvings.
