DIED, in Washington, Wilkes county, on Monday, the 16th ult. WILLIAM SAMSON, Esq. in the 64th year of his age. He was among the many patriots young men of Virginia, who in 1775, the most doubtful and alarming crisis of the revolution, enlisted themselves in the cause of independence. At this period he joined the 7th Virginia Regiment as private; was with it in some of the earliest fought battles of that war, and continued in the service of his country until the close of the revolutionary contest; after which, he removed to this state, and was among the early settlers of Wilkes county, where he lived and discharged many of the important duties of a useful citizen. His disorder was an affection of the lungs; the long and severe pains of which were assuaged by the well grounded hopes of a Christian. He has left a widow and a large family of children to lament the loss of a kind husband, and an indulgent parent.

On the morning of the 19th ult. at the residence of Robert Bowdre, Esq. of Columbia county, Mrs. MARY DIXON, late consort of Thomas H. Dixon, Esq. Her disease (a pulmonary affection) marched with slow but steady steps towards her dissolution, yet she bore it and its consequent pains and torment with patience, fortitude and passive resignation. Her affection toward her husband and family, her virtues, her piety and unrighteous amid the last struggles of nature as objects are illuminated by the expiring efforts of an evanescent taper. In her paroxysms of pain and suffocation, she was forced to be silent; but at the first return of ease, her words were praise and blessings, and her actions indications of heavenly tranquility and unbounded benevolence. She piously blessed her desolate husband; she blessed her little helpless babes, and then gently breathed out her life like the guileless lamb, without a lamentation or a groan.
