Loving

I John 4:8 says, “God is love”. We know this. We heard it as children. It’s perhaps the most quoted verse in the Bible. We teach children the song, “Jesus loves me, this I know.” We see buttons and stickers, bookmarks and greeting cards which all say some version of “God loves you.” We have many reminders of God’s love. Years ago, I told myself many times a day, “God loves me.” Still, do we really get it? Do we really understand how much he loves us? We cannot possibly comprehend the depths of God’s love for us. Yet, do we have some deep appreciation of his love? Have we apprehended it? Do we sing songs of joy knowing his love? Or do we sing out of obligation, knowing that we should praise him, after all he has done for us? Does the love of God grip our hearts? If not, then why not? My idea on this is that we expect ourselves to earn God’s love, which only blocks us from receiving his love. Earned love really is not love. We cannot obligate God in any way, shape or form. We minimize how truly loving God is when we claim any merit for it. God loves us because his nature is to love. We deserve his wrath. He loves us despite of what we deserve, not because of it. We can do nothing to earn his love. He gives us his love. Learning to receive God’s love is a process. We need time and help to receive his love. We need to give ourselves grace in the process. Expecting ourselves to have it all figured out now only blocks our healing process. Psalm 36:5-9 says, “Your love, O Lord, reaches to the heavens, your faithfulness to the skies. Your righteousness is like the mighty mountains, your justice like the great deep. O Lord, you preserve both man and beast. How priceless is your unfailing love! Both high and low among men find refuge in the shadow of your wings. They feast on the abundance of your house; you give them drink from your river of delights. For with you is the fountain of life; in your light we see light.” We need light to see God’s love. We need a revelation of his love to awaken our hearts to it. Romans 5:7-8 says, “Very rarely will anyone die for a righteous man, though for a good man someone might possibly dare to die. But God demonstrates his own love for us in this: While we were still sinners Christ died for us.” God has shown us his love in sending his own Son to die for us. What more could he do? God loved us even when we were dead in sin. We did nothing to earn it. God loves because he is love.

Inspirational songs for Pentecost

Excerpts from an article on The Christian Post by Michael Gryboski. Gryboski pens a regular column titled “This week in Christian history,” which briefly sums up the anniversaries of notable events in the long and diverse past of Christianity.

Pentecost Sunday is a major holy day on the liturgical calendar that hundreds of millions of Christians observe every year. Pentecost falls 50 days after Easter, and commemorates the events of Acts 2:1–13, when the Holy Spirit descended upon the Apostles and the early Church with tongues of fire. Many churches celebrate Pentecost with sanctuary decorations featuring the color red, young people undergoing confirmation, and a broad selection of sacred music to choose from. Here are inspirational hymns that are often used for Pentecost Sunday. They include popular pieces from the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries.

O for a Thousand Tongues to Sing ~ Hymn No. 57

One of the most notable hymns from prolific songwriter Charles Wesley, “O for a Thousand Tongues to Sing” was written in 1739 to commemorate his born-again Christian experience the year before. The original hymn text has 18 stanzas. The seventh stanza eventually became the first in the hymn text most commonly used in the English speaking world. “The hymn was first published in A Collection of Hymns for the Use of the People Called Methodists (1780). The significance of this hymn in the Methodist tradition is symbolized by its appearance as the first hymn in the United Methodist Hymnal (1989).”

Breathe on me, breath of God ~ Hymn No. 420

Nineteenth century British scholar and Oxford University faculty member Edwin Hatch wrote “Breathe on me, Breath of God” as a musical prayer. The repeated stanza opening alludes to Bible verses like Genesis 2:7, in which God “breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and the man became a living being” as well as John 20:22, which describes Jesus breathing on his disciples and saying “Receive the Holy Spirit.” “This hymn prays that God will breathe on us and fill us with life anew, even as God breathed life into Adam. It prays that God will breathe on us to purify our hearts,” stated sermonwriter.com. “It prays that God will breathe on us until we are wholly devoted to God. It prays that God will breathe on us so that we might never die.”

O Thou Who Camest From Above ~ Hymn No. 501

Another hymn from Charles Wesley, “O Thou Who Camest From Above” was originally published in Short Hymns on Select Passages of the Holy Scriptures in 1762. According to the Rev. Dr. Norma Lee Kerns Barnhart, the basis for the hymn was Leviticus 6:13, “The fire shall ever be burning upon the altar, it shall never go out.” “This passage is the Lord speaking to Moses to command Aaron and his sons about the ritual of the burnt offering,” wrote Barnhart.

Come Down, O Love Divine ~ Hymn No. 475

“Come Down, O Love Divine” traces its origins to the fifteenth century, having been authored by Bianco da Siena of Venice and published in a book entitled Spiritual Hymns. In the nineteenth century, the hymn was translated into English, along with several other da Siena works, by a British priest named Richard Littledale. “This hymn is a prayer—an impassioned plea for God to come down from heaven to reside in our hearts and set our hearts afire with a holy flame. It prays that God will shine a glorious light to illumine our pathway,” stated sermonwriter.com.

Spirit of God, Descend upon My Heart ~ Hymn No. 500

An Anglican minister born in Dublin, Ireland named George Croly wrote the popular hymn “Spirit of God, Descend Upon my Heart,” originally publishing it in the 1850s. Croly wrote several sacred music pieces for his lower class London-based congregation, however this one was the only one known of in the present day. “The words of this sung prayer are among the most passionate in the history of hymnody,” wrote C. Michael Hawn, professor of sacred music at Perkins School of Theology. “... there is a floating quality to the ending of each stanza, reminiscent of the hovering of the descending Dove, one of the metaphors of the Spirit.”

FROM BISHOP SHARMA LEWIS:

Hello Virginia Annual Conference: We are beginning to see, in falling case numbers and rising vaccination rates, the promise of a new day. Last year I created the Back to In-Person Worship Work Group to help us employ the best practices in fighting the pandemic as we returned to worship. Later, I created an additional Mission and Ministry Work Group to extend that work to other forms of ministry in the life of the church. The dedicated clergy and lay people who have served on these groups have done exceptional work, committing many hours on a weekly basis to helping us develop policies using the best expertise available.

However, the pandemic is not over and the resources created by these groups are still important for our churches. As of May 1, I am discontinuing the two work groups, (In-Person Worship and Mission & Ministry), with gratefulness for all that they have done. In their place, I am establishing a new Post-COVID Re-Entry Group (PRG) that will help us move confidently into this new day. The new group will continue to offer resources to keep us safe during the remaining months of the pandemic but it will also offer new resources that focus on doing ministry in the changed environment we now face. The Rev. Seungsoo ‘R.J.’ Jun, our new Associate Director of Serving Ministries, is convening this new group which will include members of the previous work groups.

Also, I am asking local churches to develop their own PRG teams to develop plans for worship and ministry. These groups will take the place of the Healthy Church Teams (HCTs), which have done so much great and important work on the local church level. By July 1, all major decision-making for mitigation methods will revert to local churches.

These changes are not an invitation to remove all restrictions. We will still need to be vigilant for months to come and I am asking that local churches submit any new plans to their district superintendents for review after July 1. But it is time to make this shift and to rely on the wisdom that all of our local churches have developed through this crisis.
