

☐

I'm not robot

reCAPTCHA

I am not robot!

New york state board of nursing license number

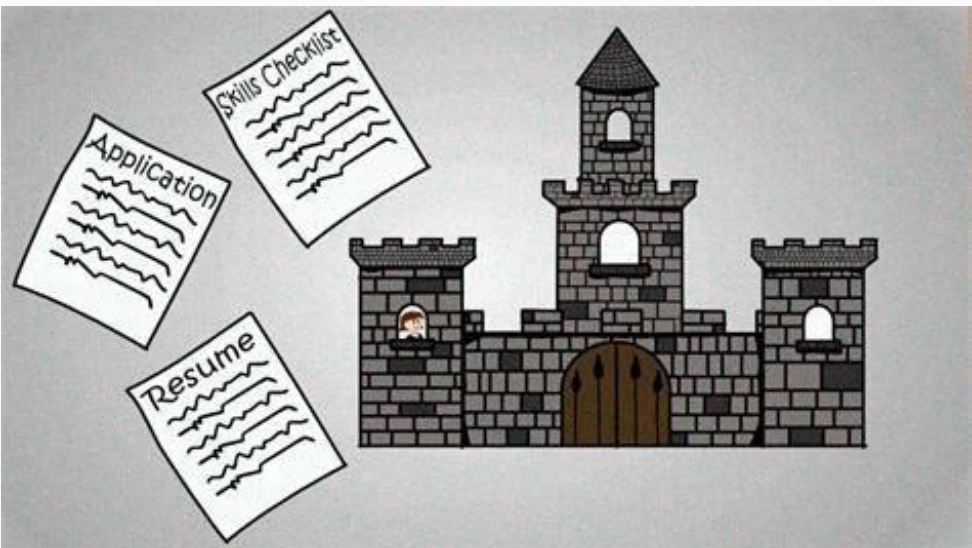

What is my nys nursing license number. How do i find my new york state nursing license number. How do i verify a nursing license in ny. Ny license number format.

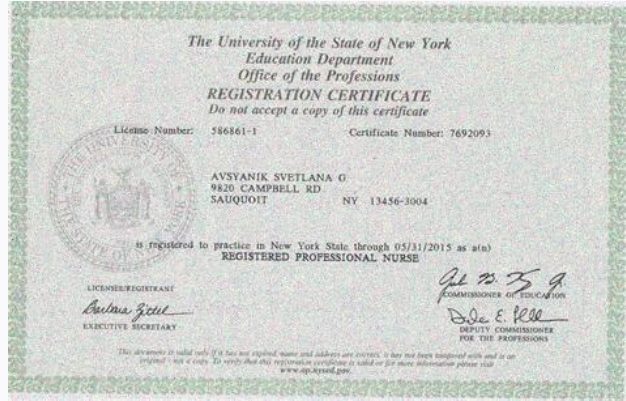

A list of these registered nursing education programs is on our website. To meet the education requirements for licensure as an RN, you must graduate from an nursing education program acceptable to the New York State Education Department (NYSED). In addition, you must complete NYSED approved child abuse reporting and New York State required infection control coursework or qualify for an exemption from the coursework requirements. Education Programs You must graduate from a nursing education program that meets one of the three criteria below. A nursing education program (associate’s, bachelor’s or master’s degree or Diploma program) registered by NYSED as license qualifying for RN; or, A nursing education program located in another state or U.S. Territory, if approved by the licensing authority of the state or U.S. Territory as preparation for practice as an RN. (US territories include: Puerto Rico, Guam, US Virgin Islands, Northern Mariana Islands and American Samoa); or, A general nursing education program located in a country outside of the United States or its territories, which is acceptable to NYSED. Child Abuse Reporting Coursework Before NYSED will issue you a limited permit or license, you must complete NYSED approved child abuse reporting coursework or qualify for an exemption. If you graduated from a nursing education program registered by NYSED as licensure qualifying for RN after September 1, 1990, you have already completed the child abuse reporting coursework requirement as part of your studies. If you did not graduate from a nursing education program registered by NYSED as licensure qualifying for RN after September 1, 1990 and you do not qualify for an exemption, you must take an NYSED approved child abuse reporting course. These courses are available online. For more information and a list of approved course providers. You may qualify for an exemption from New York’s child abuse reporting coursework requirement if you can demonstrate that, during your nursing practice, you will not have contact with persons under the age of 18 or residents of nursing homes or residential care schools. You can request this exemption when you apply for your license. Infection Control Coursework All practicing RNs must complete NYSED approved infection control coursework every four (4) years or qualify for an exemption. When you apply for a license, you will be required to show that you completed NYSED approved infection control coursework or qualify for an exemption.

Child Abuse Reporting Coursework Before NYSED will issue you a limited permit or license, you must complete NYSED approved child abuse reporting coursework or qualify for an exemption. If you graduated from a nursing education program registered by NYSED as licensure qualifying for RN after September 1, 1990, you have already completed the child abuse reporting coursework requirement as part of your studies. If you did not graduate from a nursing education program registered by NYSED as licensure qualifying for RN after September 1, 1990 and you do not qualify for an exemption, you must take an NYSED approved child abuse reporting course. These courses are available online. For more information and a list of approved course providers. You may qualify for an exemption from New York’s child abuse reporting coursework requirement if you can demonstrate that, during your nursing practice, you will not have contact with persons under the age of 18 or residents of nursing homes or residential care schools. You can request this exemption when you apply for your license. Infection Control Coursework All practicing RNs must complete NYSED approved infection control coursework every four (4) years or qualify for an exemption. When you apply for a license, you will be required to show that you completed NYSED approved infection control coursework or qualify for an exemption. If you graduated from a nursing education program registered by NYSED as licensure qualifying for RN within the past four years, you already completed the required infection control coursework as part of your nursing studies. You do not have to take additional infection control coursework when you apply for a license. If you did not graduate from a nursing education program registered by NYSED as licensure qualifying for RN within the past four years, you must take an NYSED approved infection control course -or- qualify for an exemption from these coursework requirements. NYSED approved infection control courses are available in person and online. For more information and a list of approved course providers. You may qualify for an exemption from New York’s infection control coursework requirement if you can show NYSED that: (1) you took infection control training that is equivalent to NYSED required infection control coursework or, (2) taking infection control coursework is not necessary due to the nature of your nursing practice. You can request this exemption when you apply for your license.

(US territories include: Puerto Rico, Guam, US Virgin Islands, Northern Mariana Islands and American Samoa); or, A general nursing education program located in a country outside of the United States or its territories, which is acceptable to NYSED.

A nursing education program (associate’s, bachelor’s or master’s degree or Diploma program) registered by NYSED as license qualifying for RN; or, A nursing education program located in another state or U.S. Territory, if approved by the licensing authority of the state or U.S. Territory as preparation for practice as an RN. (US territories include: Puerto Rico, Guam, US Virgin Islands, Northern Mariana Islands and American Samoa); or, A general nursing education program located in a country outside of the United States or its territories, which is acceptable to NYSED.

Child Abuse Reporting Coursework Before NYSED will issue you a limited permit or license, you must complete NYSED approved child abuse reporting coursework or qualify for an exemption. If you graduated from a nursing education program registered by NYSED as licensure qualifying for RN after September 1, 1990, you have already completed the child abuse reporting coursework requirement as part of your studies. If you did not graduate from a nursing education program registered by NYSED as licensure qualifying for RN after September 1, 1990 and you do not qualify for an exemption, you must take an NYSED approved child abuse reporting course. These courses are available online. For more information and a list of approved course providers. You may qualify for an exemption from New York’s child abuse reporting coursework requirement if you can demonstrate that, during your nursing practice, you will not have contact with persons under the age of 18 or residents of nursing homes or residential care schools. You can request this exemption when you apply for your license. Infection Control Coursework All practicing RNs must complete NYSED approved infection control coursework every four (4) years or qualify for an exemption. When you apply for a license, you will be required to show that you completed NYSED approved infection control coursework or qualify for an exemption. If you graduated from a nursing education program registered by NYSED as licensure qualifying for RN within the past four years, you already completed the required infection control coursework as part of your nursing studies. You do not have to take additional infection control coursework when you apply for a license. If you did not graduate from a nursing education program registered by NYSED as licensure qualifying for RN within the past four years, you must take an NYSED approved infection control course -or- qualify for an exemption from these coursework requirements. NYSED approved infection control courses are available in person and online. For more information and a list of approved course providers. You may qualify for an exemption from New York’s infection control coursework requirement if you can show NYSED that: (1) you took infection control training that is equivalent to NYSED required infection control coursework or, (2) taking infection control coursework is not necessary due to the nature of your nursing practice. You can request this exemption when you apply for your license. The information furnished on this website is from the Office of the Professions' official database, which is updated daily. This is considered to be a secure, primary source for license verification. However, the database is currently under maintenance for enhancement and you may encounter issues with search results. Any issues should be reported using our Website Feedback Form. If the database search fields are not displaying below, please clear your cache (or browser data) and/or access the database using another browser (see instructions for clearing browser cache: Chrome; Edge; Firefox; Safari). Please note, Internet Explorer is not supported for this database, so an alternative browser will be needed to perform a search. A license indicates that an individual has met the minimum requirements of the Education Law to enter practice or use a professional title within New York State (NYS). A license is valid for the life of the holder unless revoked, annulled, or suspended by the Board of Regents. The Education Law requires that individual licensees periodically register with the Department and pay a fee in order to actively practice or use a professional title within NYS. The Department issues certification of licensure, for a $20 fee, to provide a licensee’s official information on the basis of licensure for a variety of purposes. Certification requests can only be submitted by the licensee and can only be sent to the licensee or the licensing authority of another state or jurisdiction. The Department also issues written verification of licensure, for a $10 fee, confirming an individual is licensed in NYS and their registration status.

To determine which request you need to make for your specific purposes please complete the online Form below. Fee payment can only be made by credit card (MasterCard, Visa, or American Express). Online License Certification and Verification Form *Note: Engineering, Land Surveying and Geology- For information on requesting Certification of Successful Completion of Licensure Examination or Intern Certificates see the Engineering & Land Surveying or the Geology webpage. Pharmacy Interns - Please do not fill out this request form. The Department does NOT provide written certification or verification of internship hours or clinical experiences. Contact the state board where you are seeking licensure to inquire whether they will accept an affidavit, from your pharmacy school or the preceptor who supervised your internship, attesting to your completed internship dates/hours. An online verification of an intern permit can be performed using our Online Verification Service (under the pharmacist profession). Contact us Education Laws, Rules of the Board of Regents, and Regulations of the Commissioner of Education LEARN MORE