The Board considered a petition from patrons of the Weaverville Colored School asking that the school be continued rather than sending its children to the Hill Street School now under construction in Asheville.

The Board took no action on the petition so the transfer will be carried out. However, the transfer will probably be delayed since the Hill Street School is not expected to be completed in September. Roberson also said the Weaverville School will have to operate with one teacher for 26 pupils in grades one through eight since the State has reduced the number of teachers for the school from two to one.
