The History of THE STABLE

The STABLE structure was built in the early 1830's. North-Central Virginia was one of the most hotly contested areas in the world during the Civil War of the 1860s. Culpeper's strategic railroad location made it a significant supply station for Confederate and Union troops. As a highly prized position for both sides, the county witnessed more troop movement than any location in the nation. Control depended upon the town occupancy at the time. If under Union control, the STABLE housed General Ulysses S. Grant's horse Cincinnati. If under Confederate control, the STABLE boarded General Robert E. Lee's beloved equine Traveller. Grant headquartered, Lee camped, Jackson fought and Stuart wintered in Culpeper County — as did their horses. This historic building was a major quartermaster and blacksmith establishment in Virginia where armies would come for supplies, wagon wheel repair and horseshoe replacement during the Civil War. Directly across the street is where the STABLE barns were located.

Thank you for visiting the Stable. We are honored to be a part of this unique historical landmark.
