A New Standard for Evaluating Social Impact: Pilot Launch

Strategic Evaluation for College & University Leaders

The Questions

- Are you launching initiatives and partnerships across your institution but struggling to translate that activity into measurable, lasting social impact?
 - Is your institution working harder than ever—investing in initiatives, coordination, and collaboration—yet still falling short of achieving meaningful, sustained social impact?

The Pattern

Across higher education institutions, the same outcomes persist: Significant investment in programs, partnerships, and coordination

BUT

- Limited sustained social impact
 - Reform efforts that stall before achieving scale
 - Networks that fail to maintain momentum
 - Increasing pressure to demonstrate results

The Reality

These are not execution failures.

They are system design failures.

Most institutions are not structured to generate changemaking network effects, the conditions under which:

- Participation grows
- Trust compounds
- Learning spreads
- Impact sustains and scales

The Opportunity

Impact Sphere Global is launching a pilot Strategic Briefing and Diagnostic Evaluation to assess how institutions actually function—and why impact is not compounding.

This is not consulting.

This is a structured evaluation of your organization's capacity to produce sustained social impact with insight and recommendations to enhance capacity.

What You Receive

- Diagnostic assessment across core performance domains
 - Quantitative scoring model
 - Live Strategic Briefing (executive-level)
 - Written report identifying systemic constraints and leverage points

What This Enables

- Clear understanding of why and where impact is not scaling
 - Identification of high-leverage intervention points
 - Alignment across strategy, operations, and networks
 - A pathway to sustained, system-level social impact

Participation

- Limited to 6 organizations
 - Designed for leaders of higher education institutions and related purpose-driven organizations
 - Early access to a new global evaluation standard

Next Steps

For leaders navigating complexity, clarity is the first requirement for impact.
