Where History Inspires Tomorrow

Nearly 200 years ago, Daniel Pratt's vision transformed a small Alabama community into the birthplace of Southern industrial development.

Today, we have an opportunity—and a responsibility—to preserve that remarkable legacy while inspiring future generations through history, education, and innovation.

The Pratt will be more than a Museum

It will be an interactive place where children discover, families connect, students explore, and visitors experience the remarkable people and ideas that built our community.

Your investment today will help create:

- Hands-on exhibits that spark curiosity
- Educational programs serving local schools
- Preservation of priceless artifacts and stories
- Community gathering spaces for generations to enjoy
- A destination that strengthens tourism and local pride
