

How to Evangelize to Your Classmates Online in 5 Minutes

Online classes and social media have changed the way we interact—but they haven't changed the Great Commission. Evangelizing to classmates online doesn't require a long debate or a full sermon. You just need five intentional minutes.

1. Pray for Open Doors (30 Seconds)

Before you type a word, ask God for wisdom and opportunity:

"Lord, give me the courage to share Your truth and open my classmate's heart to receive it."

Evangelism starts with dependence on God, not just strategy.

2. Engage in a Conversation (2 Minutes)

Find natural ways to bring up faith in class discussions, study groups, or direct messages.

Try questions like:

- "This topic made me think about faith—what do you believe about God?"
- "Have you ever considered how Christianity explains morality?"
- "What do you think happens after we die?"

Let them respond, and listen well. Evangelism isn't a one-way broadcast—it's a conversation.

3. Share a Simple Gospel Message (1 Minute)

If the door opens, keep your message clear:

"I believe Jesus is God who came to save us. He died for our sins, rose again, and offers eternal life to those who trust in Him."

If they push back, don't argue—answer with gentleness (1 Pet. 3:15) and invite deeper discussion.

4. Send a Resource (30 Seconds)

If they're open, share a short video, a Bible verse, or a testimony:

- A YouTube video explaining the gospel

- A Bible passage like John 3:16 or Romans 5:8
- Your own faith story in a few sentences

This lets them explore at their own pace.

5. Keep the Door Open (1 Minute)

Even if they don't respond right away, leave the conversation open:

- "I'd love to keep talking about this if you're interested."
- "Let me know if you ever want to chat more about faith."
- "I'm here if you have any questions."

Evangelism isn't just about a one-time conversation—it's about planting seeds and trusting God to make them grow.

So take five minutes, start a conversation, and see where God leads.
