LORD'S ACRE PIES

We have all the sugar needed at this time for pies! THANK YOU!

We still need 140#

bleached all-purpose flour (nothing heavier than 25# bags) We are now also needing 67# Brown Sugar, 70# Butter, and 12# Pecans. Please drop by the office or leave in kitchen on counter, in walk-in cooler or freezer with Lord's Acre written on it. Please notify Jeanne in the office of your donation.

You make a difference and make it possible to make this happen.

God Bless! Thank you for your donations!

We Need Your Rhubarb!

Do you have rhubarb or know of someone that has rhubarb? We hope as your rhubarb is ready, you will pull, cut up into 1/2" pieces, freeze on cookie sheets, and then bag.

Be sure to put a label on them and date. By freezing on cookie sheets we can use the fruit as needed and it will make much better pies than a solid bag of fruit.

If you don't have room to store in your freezer, please bring with you next time you come to church.

Thank you in advance for this contribution. to Lord's Acre pies. If you have any questions or need help please contact Jeanne in the office, Amber Turnage, or Kristi Dunlap.

Giving your child chores and responsibilities doesn't just make life easier for you—it's good for them, too!

Here are the final four essential life skills your kids should be doing on their own by the time they're teenagers.

22. Goal Setting – Knowing how to prioritize

Teach your children to identify their skills and set goals that can give them personal gratification as well as professional success. You could teach them to:

- Figure out what they want to do and where they want to be in a few years' time. Help them gain clarity.
- Set realistic goals, or else they will end up disappointed sooner than later.
- Focus on their goals and chalk out a plan to achieve them in a realistic manner.
- Identify resources that can help them achieve their goals.
- Change goals or modify them if needed. Goals can be changed or adjusted to suit the changing needs of a person. Your teenager may also change, as an individual, which can lead to changes in their personal or professional goals.
- Eventually, you can guide your teenager to a position where she or he can set bigger goals, paving the way for a more meaningful and purposeful life.

23. Time Management

How often have you heard your teenager complain about not having enough time to do all that they want to? We all have 24 hours in a day. How we manage it makes a world of difference in what we achieve. Essential skills that your teen might need for better time management include:

- Start by modeling good time management habits. If you are always wishing for 'more time' and doing things in a hurry, chances are your children will learn to do that too.
- Teach them to organize their time using a simple timetable or a planner.
- Let them create a schedule and stick to it. Even the slightest deviation from the plan can leave them crunched for time.
- Teach your children to prioritize their tasks to use their time responsibly. Help them identify important tasks and differentiate between what is important and what is urgent.
- Developing a routine makes it easier to manage time.
- Encourage them through model behavior, but do not nag them about wasting time.

24. Decision-making Skills

Your teenager will have to make decisions, make a choice at every step of their adult life. From something as simple as what to eat for dinner to making a significant career move or marrying a person they love, everything is a decision.

- The first step to teaching your teenager to make a decision is to stop making decisions for them. However, you should not leave any major, life-changing decisions in the hands of an adolescent.
- Rather than telling them to do something, give them choices. Let them choose.
- Also, emphasize that every choice they make comes with a consequence. That way, they will learn to take responsibility for their decisions.
- Help them make the right choices by weighing the pros and cons and determining what the outcome of their decision would be.

You could also teach them to make a list of options first and then evaluate each to make the right decisions.

25. Employability Skills

To be employable or be noticed by potential employers, a person needs to have more than just credentials on the wall. Here are a few skills you may encourage your teenager to develop for better career opportunities.

- Communication skills.
- Thinking and analytical skills.
- Work ethics and integrity.
- Ability to value and use the available resources.
- Knowledge and application of technology.
- Adaptability to adjust to new work environments and coworkers from diverse backgrounds.
- Willingness and ability to learn new skills. Teach your child to be open-minded.
- Ability to evaluate their own skills and identify weaknesses.
- Willingness to rectify faults to deliver better.

Teaching life skills to teenagers is not easy, but if you can do that, you will have done justice to your job as a parent. This concludes the installment on the 25 Essential Life Skills for Teens.
