EASTER EGG HUNT

BASEMENT REMODEL

"Team Feed" is here and serving many children, families, and community folks!

We are feeding them, and they are coming. PBCC has begun a new mission to provide a meal for our Awana children on Tuesday evenings. This will be an addition to the meals that are being provided for the middle and high school students on Wednesday nights. The AWANA and Forged Youth programs are very beneficial for our young people.

Every Tuesday before AWANA Club we are serving a free dinner for AWANA kids, families, and others in our community. We are serving on average 430 meals on AWANA night and 60 meals on Forged Youth night each month. Praise God for the volunteers and faithful hearts that have stepped up to make this ministry come to fruition thus far.

Each week of AWANA, we will have a nutritious meal available, served between 5 – 5:45pm, free of charge*. We hope that this will (among other things) help AWANA families who find themselves "flying low," trying to get their children from school and to the church for AWANA. This same menu will be prepared for our Forged Youth kids on Wednesday evenings as well.

The team that will be preparing and serving the AWANA meals on Tuesday evenings are asking families to consider how they might be able to help – either on a weekly basis, a bi-weekly, or even monthly on a rotation.

We're looking for:

- Set-up Team Members (4pm)
- Prep Team Members (4pm)
- Child care helpers (4-6:00 pm)
- Servers (5-5:45pm)
- Clean-up Team Members (5:45-6:30pm)
- Shoppers (various times)

The Mission Meal ministry meals on Tuesday evenings will follow the AWANA year calendar. The Forged Youth meals will continue being prepared and served on Wednesday evenings (as we have done this past year) and follow the public school calendar.

If you would like more information, or to let us know of your desire to participate, please contact Ronda at 541-548-3066 or by email at pbcc@powellbuttechurch.com.

*The meal is absolutely free, but donations are always accepted to pay it forward for other families to be able to eat a hot meal on a weekly basis.

Donation items needed!!! Look for the food donation board in both the fellowship and great halls. You will have ongoing opportunities to help provide the ingredients necessary for our weekly meals.

Financial Planning Ministry

God asked us to be good and faithful stewards of the resources He entrusts to us. Powell Butte Christian Church and OCEF is offering a seminar through OCEF's partner Family Planning Ministry. Estate planning is often overlooked as a means for good stewardship. Regardless of your financial position or age, every adult should have an effective estate plan that includes future distribution of resources, outlines important medical decisions, and provides for the guardianship of minor children.

57% of U.S. adults do not currently have estate planning documents and two-thirds have no living will or other advanced directive. These documents typically cost between $1,500 - $4,000.

Do you know where you can get these documents for FREE?

Do you want to understand more about Estate Planning? Do you want to know why everyone needs a will? Do you have other questions...Do I need a Trust? Do I need a Power of Attorney? How can I avoid costly mistakes like probate?

If you answer yes, then you will want to come to this seminar from Financial Planning Ministry. In order to obtain your FREE secure documents, you will need to attend this seminar in order to get your special code to access documents. A Family Planning Ministry Estate Consultant helps you through the entire process. FMP is approved by the Evangelical Council for Financial Accountability and has a Better Business Rating of A+. Feel free to take a look at their website: <https://www.fpm.org>

Steve Carter, Stewardship Pastor of Southeast Christian Church in Kentucky says that the FMP seminar "empowers people with practical guidance based on Biblical foundation of stewardship. Many of our members are benefiting from their invaluable estate planning service which is helping them to leave a legacy that honors God in advance of his kingdom." Reserve your spot at the seminar today by signing up in the foyer. For further information contact Susan Rath at 541-548-3066.

How to Help When Your Teen Falls Behind in School \(Part 1\)

by

Amy Morin, LCSW

Updated on August 12, 2020

Fact checked by Sean Blackburn

In high school, harder concepts are introduced, more work is assigned, and the expectations are higher than ever—and that doesn't even take into account the stress of non-academic pursuits, such as sports, clubs, jobs, and friends.

With all the pressure piled onto today's teenagers, it's no surprise that some start to get in trouble with their schoolwork. Teens who fall behind may fall into a pattern of poor test grades, incomplete homework, and failing grades.

While you can't force your teen to do their work, you can offer a little extra support to help them. With your help, they should be able to catch up on homework before they fall behind too much.

Step In Early

It's important to help your teen before they dig themselves in too deep. Whether your teen doesn't understand their math homework or they lost an important project in science, falling behind can be really stressful. And many teens cope with that stress by avoiding the truth.

Rather than face that pile of homework that keeps adding up or stare at a book they don't understand, they often prefer not to think about it. But the "out of sight, out of mind" approach only makes their problems worse.

If you suspect your teen is falling behind, consider it a sign that they need some extra support. The sooner you step in, the better. It's easier to catch up on missed work and difficult concepts when they are only a little bit behind. Once they get too far behind, they are likely to become overwhelmed and it will be much harder to dig out of the hole.

Prioritize Your Teen's Schedule

If your teen is flitting from drama club to football practice to flipping burgers each day, they may be overscheduled. If that's the case, they may need to cut back on non-academic pursuits.

Sit down together and prioritize. Some teens assume their involvement in extra-curricular activities is crucial to college admissions. But college admissions officers won't care what activities appear on transcripts if they have failing grades.

You may need to establish a clear rule that helps your teen decide whether they can continue activities outside of school. For example, you might say, "If your progress report shows any failing grades you'll need to quit your job," or "If you're missing more than two homework grades, you'll need to quit the drama club."

Rule Out Underlying Learning Disorders

Sometimes learning disorders go undiagnosed until high school. When the work gets harder, learning disabilities become more apparent.

If you suspect your teen may be struggling with a learning issue, talk to school officials. If your teen's teachers see signs of a problem, your teen may be tested for learning disabilities.

Consider Mental Health Issues

Many teens struggle to stay caught up on their schoolwork because they're battling mental illness. It's hard to do homework when you're feeling depressed or anxious. Sleep disorders, depression, anxiety, eating disorders or substance abuse are just a few of the common mental health issues teens face.

If you suspect your teen has a mental health issue, schedule an appointment with the doctor. Discuss any changes you're seeing in your teen's mood, behavior, and academic performance and the physician can help determine how to proceed.
