Missionary Leaving PBCC Support

For the last 4 years we have been supporting Mary L. in Moroto, Uganda. She worked with the Koramajong about 55 miles northwest from our K&K villages. Mary has decided to not renew her term with African Inland Missions (AIM) at this time. PBCC GOT has terminated her financial support as she had funds to cover her until the end of her term at AIM. She has been in the states for a few months now and has been working at Christian camps for the summer.

I received this from Mary.
 Uganda has just loosened some of their lockdown procedures. This means I will be able to travel after camp. I just purchased my ticket and will fly out of Portland August 23. Then I will spend a little more than a month in Uganda as I pack up my house and say farewell to the people I love so much. Please be praying for this time -- I know it will be difficult. But I continue to grow in my confidence that this is what God has asked of me. I know He has work for me -- whatever it may be! I will keep you all updated on what that will look like, sending prayer requests as I do! Thank you so much for the love and support you have always lavished on me! Mary L.

So please be in prayer for her over the next month as she travels and says "until we meet again!" to the people she has loved, especially the children.
 If you would like more information please feel free to contact me. Ann A. - Global Outreach Team Chairperson GriefShare is a special weekly seminar and support group designed to help you rebuild your life after losing a loved one. The group is facilitated by caring people who have experienced grief and want to help you through the difficult days ahead. We know it hurts and we want to help! This is a separate class from the Loss of a Spouse, but those who have lost a spouse would gain more insight by taking this class. All Are Welcome!

Still time to start this class!!

75th Lord’s Acre is Saturday, November 6

This year is going to be a special year for Lord’s Acre – number 75!

Plans are to have a few special items like a new cookbook, commemorative items, and more breakfast sausage than ever before. We are looking for a couple areas needing extra assistance. The BBQ bean department needs helpers to get the beans ready and we are recruiting for a new meat sales department chairperson. If any of these excite or entice you then please see Clay P. More opportunities for more volunteers coming soon!

And if anyone has a beef, hog, lamb, or goat that they want to donate for the BBQ, then let Clay know about that too. Monetary donations for supplies are always welcome for any Lord’s Acre department.

Operation Christmas Child will be happening as usual this year!

NOW is a good time to get your school supplies while they are at their lowest prices of the season! Color crayons, scissors, pencils, pen, pencil sharpeners and paper notebooks are usually cheaper to buy NOW than, to buy later at the Dollar Store. Walmart has a good selection, but watch your local stores for a good prices on these items.

Watch for sales prices on WOW items, summer toys, summer clothing, out of season items that can be bought at 50-90% off of regular prices.

*You can also sew, crochet, knit and hand make items for the shoeboxes!!

We will be working with AWANA to fill boxes this year at an Awana packing party!

There are still kids in this world that need to know about Jesus, and each shoe box is a gospel opportunity for a child and possibly the entire family.

Please consider how you can bring in a gift filled shoebox! Start building your supplies up now for filling a shoebox or two!

Boxes available the second week of September at the church.

**All precautions will be taken to keep everyone safe that is bringing in shoeboxes!

Questions?? Contact Jeanne in the office, or call 541-548-3066

COLLECTION DAY IS NOVEMBER 14TH, 2021

Marriage Maintenance Classes

Marriage Maintenance Class start on September 12th during the Sunday School hour. 9:40am-10:20am

Love and Respect (six week course) Emerson Eggerichs

*We believe every marriage should be exposed to these core lessons. The tools are there, if we stay focused on God and realize our marriages are one of the many tools we can use to spread the Gospel and make disciples it gives us another opportunity to worship God every day by staying in and working through our marriages.

Questions?? Call Troy or Teresa Y.

Building Confidence in Teenagers

by raisingchildren.net.au

Confidence in teenagers: what is it?

Confidence is the belief that you will be successful or make the right choice in a particular situation.

Your confidence is related to your self-esteem, which is feeling good about yourself and feeling that you are a worthwhile person. But having high self-esteem does not mean you always feel confident.

Confidence and resilience are related too. Resilience is the ability to bounce back from difficult experiences and cope in hard or stressful situations. If your child has resilience and learns that they can cope when life is difficult, it will leave them feeling more confident to tackle difficult situations. It is a positive cycle.

Why building confidence is important for teenagers

Confidence helps teenagers make safe, informed decisions. Confident teenagers can avoid people and situations that are not necessarily right for them and find those that are.

If your child is confident, they will also more likely to be assertive, positive, engaged, enthusiastic and persistent.

For example, a confident teenage girl whose boyfriend breaks up with her might be upset for a little while. But then she might realize that she can bounce back from the sadness she is feeling now and focus more on the positive aspects of her life, like other friends and family. On the other hand, a girl who feels less confident in her relationship skills might be more upset, or even feel that the break-up was her fault. This could also affect her self-esteem and leave her feeling that she is not worth dating.

Teenagers with low confidence are less likely to join in activities, more likely to hold back in class, and might be more willing to give in to peer influence. When a child lacks confidence, he might expect to fail at things he tries, or he might not try as hard when things get tricky.

How to build confidence and resilience in your child

Here are some tips for building confidence and resilience in your child.

Be practical

Look for the practical and positive things your child can do to build skills and increase her chances of success. Giving your child a clear strategy to improve their likelihood of success is a great way to help them understand exactly what they can do to achieve goals. For example, 'Ada, if you want to be picked for the basketball team, you need to make sure you're listening to the coach and practicing between sessions'.

Give your child opportunities to try new things

When your child tries lots of different things, they will get to know what they are good at and what they enjoy. They will also learn that most people do well at some things and not so well at others – and that is fine. After all, we cannot all be Olympic athletes, gaming champions or musical geniuses.

Encourage your child to keep trying

If your child fails at something, help her understand that everyone makes mistakes. It is OK if you can't do something the first time you try. You could share some examples of times that you have failed or have needed to keep trying at something.

Model confidence in your own ability

You can be a role model when it comes to confidence. For example, you could talk to your child about what you are going to do to try to succeed at a task. If it does not work out, you can model resilience by talking about what you're going to try next time. You can also discuss things you've done that might have been scary or tough for you to do, showing your child that you've also been through times when you've needed confidence.

Encourage your child to act confident

Acting confident is the first step to feeling confident. So you could suggest to your child that he makes eye contact with others, is bold, does what he loves, tries not to focus on what he can't do, and walks away from situations he knows aren't good.

Practice social skills

If your child feels anxious in social situations, they might need some guidance from you. For example, body posture, smiling, connecting with others, showing interest in others' activities and joining in conversations can help build confidence.

Praise your child's efforts

If an exam, interview or game doesn't work out the way your child hoped, try to praise your child for the effort they put into the activity, rather than the outcome. You could also suggest some ideas about what they could do differently next time.

Risks to teenage confidence

Your child's confidence might be at risk if you or other people they respect focus on their outcomes rather than their efforts. If the outcome is a 'failure' – for example, a poor exam result, a grand final loss – it can seem like the end of the world. But if your child knows that their effort is what you value most, this can lessen the blow of a 'failure'.

During adolescence, physical changes can also affect teenagers' confidence. If teenagers feel self-conscious about their bodies, it can affect their confidence overall and how they feel about themselves.

Bullying, or peer pressure to be the same as others, can also affect teenagers' confidence.

Getting help for teenage confidence

If your child's confidence changes suddenly, or if low confidence is stopping her from trying new things, a good first step is to talk with your child. This will help you find out what is happening for her.

If it isn't something you can help your child with yourself, it might be a good idea to get help from a teacher, school counsellor or psychologist.

If you or your son or daughter are interested in seeking support from this ministry, please contact Suzan at pbcc@powellbuttechurch.com, or leave a message with Jeanne at the church office.
