Happy Thanksgiving!

I owe a special thanks to all of you who make it possible for me to make a living doing what I love. It is an honor when someone wants my artwork in their home and it connects me to my clients in a special way. I hope that each of you has a healthy and relaxing Thanksgiving and I will look forward to seeing more of you this season!

New Artwork

I'm drawn to empty boats, both on land and water. Just like an empty chair at the beach, it leaves a sense of wonder and I can weave a story in my mind about what might be happening. My father used to paint beautiful boats during his artistic career and this piece was inspired by his personality and his work. If a ship goes "adrift", it meanders off course, traveling with the water rather than on a charted course. My father always went in his own direction and encouraged me to do the same. I thought of him while I painted this scene and I added the splash of red because he was especially colorful!
