"Taking My Time"

36" x 48" Acrylic

As we all know, turtles are associated with moving slowly, pausing frequently, and enjoying moments to just float. I decided that I wanted to approach my summer much like they approach the water. Watching turtles inspired me to reach for the bliss of slowness, the freedom of less commitments, and the peacefulness of pausing at any given moment. Typically, there isn't a day where I'm not hurrying to the next activity, trying to fit in one more thing.

This summer I am lazing with my grandson, taking afternoon naps, painting with no pressure, and taking my sweet time each day. I am hoping to translate this sense of peace onto my canvases.

I am excited for next season and I do hope to catch up with each of you to hear about your summer adventures. But no rush.... take your time!
