CHAMPAGNE BERNARD LONCLAS

À BASSUET-FRANCE

Winemaking in Châteauneuf-du-Pape goes back well over 700 years. Most credit the popes.

Winemaking in Champagne's satellite region known as the Côteaux du Vitryats goes back 50 years. EVERYONE credits Bernard Lonclas and, unlike the popes, Bernard can tell you all about it!

Since 1976, Bernard and his family have been converting the region's limestone-rich terroir from grain to vine and helping their neighbors do the same.

We are so excited to have several Lonclas' Champagnes available for the holidays!

Please see the list and pricing on page 1 of the December book. Santé!!

In the summer of 1984 ALAIN JUNGUENET loaded up a rental van with samples from French wineries nobody in the United States had ever heard of but Alain knew [hoped] the customers he didn't yet have would like them enough to place some orders. The wines were excellent, represented their respective regions well and offered terrific values. Alain's thick Parisian accent didn't hurt during those first month's making the rounds either! That October, Alain Junguenet Selection's first container landed at the port in Elizabeth, New Jersey full of wines from the Beaujolais, Rhône Valley and Southwest of France from wineries like Le Vieux Donjon (Châteauneuf-du-Pape), Clos de la Roilette (Fleurie) and Domaine du Cauhapé (Jurançon). The portfolio would become best-known for its dedication to promoting the wines of the Southern Rhône Valley, Châteauneuf-du-Pape in particular. Today, 40 years down the road, Alain Junguenet Selection is still going strong with Alain's son, John Junguenet, at the helm following Alain's passing in November 2019. The approach remains the same as it was in 1984...import and distribute family-owned and operated wineries producing well-priced, terroir-driven wines from across France and provide great, friendly service to all of our customers via a sales team of professional and knowledgeable people who love 'le monde du vin' as much as Alain did.

We look forward to continue bringing you exceptional wines and service for many years to come!

Santé!

JOHN JUNGUENET
