A Journey After The Great War

Translated by Alan Bance

Berlinica Presents: Program 2026

BERLINICA, the publishing company based in New York and Berlin, brings Berlin to America. Our 2026 program features the series Weimar in America that starts with a travelogue from Alfred Kerr. Kerr, the most eminent theatre critic of the Weimar Republic, visited the U.S. and Great Britain to plead for sympathy and protection for the fragile Weimar Republic. The book, translated by Professor Alan Bance of Southampton University will come out in summer 2026 for the first time in America. It will be followed by a travelogue written by Alexander Roda Roda.

We also brought back two books by Erik Kirschbaum, Rocking the Wall, about the famed concert Bruce Springsteen gave in 1988 in East Berlin, and Burning Beethoven, about the anti-German hysteria that rocked America during World War I.

Also recommended: Our West Berlin, a story collection from the time when the Wall was built until the year when it came down in 1989. Two dozen authors—among them four Americans—remember when Kennedy came to town, when the Kurfürstendamm was lined with protesters against the Vietnam War, and how David Bowie found a trans girlfriend. With many pictures.

We also publish other Weimar writers among them Ernst Toller and — soon — Walter Hasenclever and most notably Kurt Tucholsky. We also offer Harold Poore's biography of the famed satirist: Kurt Tucholsky: The Short Fat Berliner Who Tried to Stop a Catastrophe With A Typewriter.

All our books are available at Amazon, Barnes & Noble, and Bookshop.org and can be ordered at independent bookstores, also as ebooks. Booksellers can get them from Ingram and Books. You can also order directly from us, preferably in bulk.

NEW YORK AND LONDON. Berlin theater critic Alfred Kerr travels to the USA and Great Britain in 1922. He visits Broadway and Wall Street, marvels at Times Square and Grand Central Station, rides the subway and calls New York the “greatest city in the world” . He talks to the satirist Henry Louis Mencken, the railroad magnate W. Averell Harriman, Adolph Ochs, the publisher of The New York Times and — in London — to the poet George Bernard Shaw. But his journey is more than a travelogue: After World War I, when the mood in America and England was hostile towards Germany, Kerr is on a mission to ask for understanding and help for the fragile Weimar democracy.

Roda Roda is Germany's funny man—a sort of Mark Twain or George Bernard Shaw.

Alfred Kerr

ALFRED KERR, born in Breslau in 1867, was a German-Jewish journalist. He wrote for Berliner Tageblatt and Frankfurter Zeitung and co-founded the art magazine Pan. Kerr, known for his ironic, film-like style was the most influential theater critics of his time. He wrote books on drama, travel stories from Corsica and Algeria, In 1933, after the book burning, he fled to Prague and then to London. He died in 1948 during a lecture tour in Hamburg.

OUR WEST BERLIN! The urban island where pubs were open all night so the locals could plot the revolution! Where beer was cheap and sausage on a roll was considered fancy dinner. Where the tenements bore bullet holes from World War II, and the draft did not exist. Where every city government stumbled over some real estate scandal once in a while and the S-Bahn, controlled by East Berlin, did not run. Where grumpy retirees, industrious Turkish immigrants, and lazy students lived side by side without much talking, where winter smelled like coal, and summer like weed. This book is devoted to this half-city, surrounded by the Wall until it ceased to exist in 1989.

ERNST TOLLER, born in 1893 to a Jewish family, was a revolutionary and playwright engagé, President for six days of the short-lived Bavarian Soviet Republic, as renowned as Brecht. High profile persona non grata when the Nazis came to power, he fled to the USA. He took his own life in New York City on May 22, 1939.

ROCKING THE WALL tells how the epic Bruce Springsteen concert in East Berlin in 1988, changed the world. For this book, Erik Kirschbaum spoke to scores of fans, concert goers, and organizers, unearthed newspaper clippings, TV footage, audio recordings, and even Stasi files. This book takes you to a journey with Bruce Springsteen and the E Street Band through East Berlin to the open air concert grounds at Weissensee where The Boss, live on stage, delivered a speech against the Wall to crowd of more than 300,000 delirious young East Germans. And they really wanted their Rock'n' Roll.

The pictures are by Herbert Schulze, the official photographer of the Springsteen concert, and one of the most well-known music photographers in East Germany.

BURNING BEETHOVEN:

Before World War I, the United States was home to a flourishing German culture. But it was wiped out by a fury of anti-German hysteria during World War I that trampled the civil liberties of millions. Super patriots were determined to eradicate the German language from American schools, churches and newspapers. Sauerkraut was named “liberty cabbage” and German measles became “liberty measles”.

The eruption of hostilities against America’s biggest, proudest and most successful ethnic group even led to vigilante hangings of German aliens falsely suspected of being German spies. This book shines a light on that dark chapter of American history and answers the question: What happened to German-Americans?

A powerful retelling of a forgotten time in American history that remains as relevant today as it did a century ago.
 —Stephen Fuchs, German Pulse

Kurt Tucholsky

The Short Fat Berliner Who Tried to Stop a Catastrophe With a Typewriter

By Harold L. Poor

New Edition of:
Kurt Tucholsky and the Ordeal of Germany, 1914-1935
Preface by Belinda Davis / Introduction by Chris Poor

HAROLD L. POOR'S landmark biography about the iconoclastic German Jewish author is a still unmatched labor of love by the late Rutgers history professor. The book also shines a light on 1920s Germany. According to the New York Review of Books, Poor's biography provides a "new focus of the Weimar Republic and its fate"; The New York Times called it "...one of the best of a large and growing crop." Poor spent years of research, also visiting Tucholsky's widow Mary Gerold where he unearthed letters, pictures, and other previously unknown sources. With a preface by Rutgers History Chair Belinda Davis and an introduction by Chris Poor, the late Harold Poor's son.

... an introduction for general readers to a very important period and a witty, cosmopolitan, quite tragic man.

BERLIN! BERLIN! is a satirical selection from the man with the acid pen and the perfect pitch, who was the voice of the 1920s. This book is a collection of Tucholsky’s stories, features, funny pieces, and poems about his hometown Berlin; the cabaret, the policies, and the celebrities: Pola Negri, Gussy Holl, Bert Brecht, Max Reinhardt. The book contains some of Tucholsky’s most famous pieces; Herr Wendriner, the chatty businessman, as well as Lottchen, the flapper, and more than one satirical biography of the author himself. Translated by Cindy Opitz, with a foreword by New York author Anne Nelson and an introduction by Ian King, the chair of the Kurt Tucholsky Society.

In Weimar Germany, Tucholsky was big, the most brilliant, prolific and witty cultural journalist of his time.

Kurt Tucholsky

KURT TUCHOLSKY, born in Berlin in 1890, was an influential journalist with five pen names for Die Weltbühne, the Vorwärts and the Berliner Tageblatt. He also wrote two novels. His contemporary Erich Kaestner called the liberal who fought the Nazis early on a “small, fat Berliner,” who “tried to stop a catastrophe with his typewriter”. Ultimately, he committed suicide in 1935 in Swedish exile.

GERMANY? GERMANY!, translated by Harry Zohn presented Kurt Tucholsky to an American audience for the first time. Tucholsky, who was at the center of the tumultuous political and cultural world of 1920s Berlin still emerges as an astonishingly contemporary journalist. He was also one of the funniest writers during the rise of modernity.

HEREAFTER is a fantasy about the after-life. What will it be like when we are sitting on a cloud, watching meteors drift by? Does the Almighty care about what's happening on Earth? Did we love the ones we were meant to be with? And will we get a second chance, now that we've learned? With pictures of many little angels that guard us.

BERLIN 1945: The Soviet army has conquered Berlin, a city reduced to rubble, and under martial law. Broken tanks and makeshift barricades are littering the streets, tenements and churches were turned into bombed-out shells, tunnels have been flooded and German soldiers are hauled off to Siberia. Meanwhile, old men are cutting up dead horses for food, women are trading clothes for survival, and children are left to their own devices in the ruins. These rare pictures were taken by photographers of the Red Army. In 1955, they were transferred to Berliner Verlag. Preface by Stephen Kinzer, the former bureau chief of The New York Times in Berlin.

BERLIN IN THE COLD WAR describes the conflict between the USA and the Soviet Union as it played out in Berlin, the divided city that was frontier town, spy post, and battlefield: the 1948 blockade and the airlift by the Western Allies, the June 1953 workers uprising against the Communists in East Berlin, the rise of the Wall and the confrontation between American Army tanks and Soviet soldiers at Checkpoint Charlie, and many more stories of escape and espionage, tunnels and spy posts. With numerous pictures of the original locations and a map. “Thomas Flemming manages to tell the whole story on just 80 pages without missing a beat”, writes the Berliner Morgenpost.

THE BERLIN WALL TODAY is a full color book. It takes the reader on a tour of the traces of the Wall—train tracks, factories, churches, and cemeteries. The book tells stories of struggle, desperation, survival, and rebirth, and how the people of Berlin are reclaiming the ground where the Wall once stood: Mauer Park, where young people from all over world gather to party; a guard tower that is now the Museum of Forbidden Art; the Topography of Terror Museum, the Reichstag, East Side Gallery, and Checkpoint Charlie. The book features numerous color and historic black-and-white pictures, and maps.

THE BERLIN COOKBOOK reveals how to make traditional Berlin recipes such as Schnitzel, Currywurst, Eisbein, Roasted Goose, and potato dishes, but also newly imported dishes such as Döner Kebap. You can learn how to make those jelly donuts known as “Berliners”. Berlin cuisine is simple and down-to-earth. This cookbook also tells stories about the heritage of Berlin food: how Eisbein got its name — from an ice skating incident —, how Friedrich the Great made Prussian farmers plant potatoes, how meatballs were imported by French Huguenots who fled to Berlin in the 1700s, and how the German Chancellor Otto von Bismarck got his very own herring.

Rose Marie Donhauser

ROSE MARIE DONHAUSER grew up on a farm in Bavaria. She spent years in the international hotel industry, mostly with the Hilton chain. This was followed by working as a foodmanager and as a restaurant tester. She is an experienced cook, an acclaimed cookbook author with more than 160 books, and a food critic. In addition, she is a member of the jury of Berlin’s master chefs that honors the city’s best restaurants.

In the fall of 1891, MARK TWAIN went to Berlin, the “newest city I have ever seen”. He was accompanied by his wife, Olivia, and their three daughters. Twain conspired with diplomats, frequented salons, and dined with the Emperor. He suffered an “organized dog-choir club,” picked a fight with the police who wanted to look under his maid’s petticoats, was abused by a porter, got lost on streetcars, and witnessed an uprising right in front of his hotel Unter den Linden. Twain also began a novel about Princess Wilhelmina von Preussen. His Berlin stories are assembled here for the first time, along with a riveting account of Twain’s foray in the German capital, by Andreas Austilat.

Routes to Luther

ONE THOUSAND YEARS OF GERMAN HISTORY Leipzig!
Bach, Luther, Faust: The City of Books and Music

LEIPZIG is the city of books and music. Johann Sebastian Bach composed his cantatas in the St. Thomas Church; Martin Luther disputed the Pope; and Johann Wolfgang von Goethe’s “Faust” got into a brawl at Auerbach’s Keller. Leipzig, the site of one of the world’s oldest and largest book fairs, is located at the crossroads of two historic roads from Paris to Moscow, from Rome to the Baltic Sea. Here, Richard Wagner was born, Clara met Franz Schumann, Felix Mendelssohn made music, Erich Kästner drank coffee, and Kurt Masur directed. Leipzig rallies at the St. Nicholas Church led to the downfall of Communism. Since then, the city has been splendidly rebuilt.

This book brings to light long-forgotten details from the city’s fascinating history.

PIPPA GOLDSCHMIDT, an author inspired by science who lives in Edinburgh, Scotland, wanted to become German to be closer to her grandfather, a refugee from the Nazis. Maya Shwayer, a journalist for the TV Station Deutsche Welle in Washington, DC, pursued German citizenship to boost her career in Berlin. Yermi Brenner is an Israeli filmmaker and the grandson of Alice Licht, a resistance fighter in 1940s Berlin. This book showcases twelve authors from six countries who all have German Jewish heritage. For different reasons, they all have chosen to restore their German citizenship. And they all have reclaimed something that was taken from them and from their families.

This book opens the mind to a difficult history while tugging at your heartstrings.

BERLIN, MON AMOUR, by Adrienne Haan, is a tribute to 1920s and 1930s Germany, the still famous era of Weimar cabaret. The music CD contains sixteen songs, mostly classics with lyrics by Bert Brecht, and music by Kurt Weill and Friedrich Hollaender, including well-known songs like Pirate Jenny and Falling in Love Again. The album is arranged for Big Band by Heinz Walter Florin. The renowned Westdeutsches Radio Orchestra accompanies Haan, conveying a Broadway feeling that makes the soul swing. Haan has issued the album with reference to her three solo shows in New York: From Berlin to Broadway, The Streets of Berlin, and Berlin, Mon Amour.

Ms. Haan shows grace, elegance and extreme vocal power.

Adrienne Haan

ADRIENNE CATHRINE HAAN knew already in kindergarten that she would be in show business. Born in Germany, she moved to New York in 1997, took classes at Juilliard, and graduated from the American Academy of Dramatic Arts. She was cast in US and European musicals as Grizabella in Cats, Sally Bowles in Cabaret, and Queen Elisabeth in King Richard III at the Producer’s Club in New York.

THE PATH TO NUCLEAR FISSION tells the story of Lise Meitner, a brilliant Jewish woman whose inventions led to the atomic bomb—to her own great horror. Meitner came from Vienna to Berlin in 1907 as a shy student, where she met the worldly Otto Hahn. Eventually she and Hahn would discover nuclear fission. In this time, Meitner became prominent within a circle of colleagues that included Albert Einstein, Max Planck, and Niels Bohr. After the Nazis came to power, Hahn helped Meitner to flee to Sweden. But when he was awarded the Nobel Prize in 1945, he didn't credit her. This film, narrated by Linda Hunt, tells this story for the first time.

Ms. Reed's honors the lives of women who were more than significant investigators and inventors.

Linda Hunt

ROSEMARIE REED is an award-winning producer of documentary films, and she travels the world for her films. When she is not in New York or Berlin, the two places she calls home, she can be found in Paris, London, Moscow, or Sydney. Most of her work portrays women in science, politics, history and the arts. LINDA HUNT (left), the narrator, is an Oscar-winning actress in movies and on Broadway.

THE RED ORCHESTRA
STEFAN ROLOFF

The Red Orchestra was a resistance group that fought against the Third Reich within Germany from 1933 to 1942. The Gestapo labeled them as Communists and traitors for their efforts to put an end to Hitler, a theory that was upheld by Allied Secret Services until recently. Historians now officially recognize their work as that of one of the largest and most efficient Nazi resistance groups. The resistance fighters held a variety of political and religious beliefs. Forty percent of the members were women. Stopping the Third Reich was the common goal. Using a pioneering animation technique, this film tells their story for the first time.

THE RED ORCHESTRA was a Berlin-based resistance group that fought against the Nazis within Germany. The Gestapo labeled them Communists and traitors, and so did the Western Allies. But they held a variety of political beliefs, operating independently, with at least 400 members, including a few American expats. Only recently have historians recognized the Red Orchestra as one of the most important resistance groups. This documentary, made by Stefan Roloff, the son of the survivor Helmut Roloff tells the story using a pioneering technique and powerful original footage. The Red Orchestra was nominated as best Foreign Film 2005 by the Women Critics Circle.
