How to spin using a Dealgan Spindle

The Dealgan (or farsadh/fairsaid) is a traditional Scottish whorl-less spindle, often made of wood, characterized by its conical shape, a small knop at the top, and cross-cut grooves at the base for securing the yarn. Used primarily for plying 2-ply yarn for knitting in 18th century Scotland, it was designed for portability-often used while walking or herding sheep. You will learn how to use a Dealgan Spindle. The spindle is yours to keep after the class.

Material fee to be paid directly to the instructor the day of the class $45. Fiber and Dealgan spindle provided.
