

LYA LOPEZ | ELLA MAYZEL | CONNER MOORE

Fentanyl Contaminates All United States Pharmaceutical Exports

Fentanyl in medicine causes tragedies everywhere and countries start proposing solutions for this issue. More testing facilities, plans to provide alternatives, closer monitoring critics, and trusting trade partnerships are all proposed solutions they hope will put an end to this crisis. This deadly opioid caused harm upon millions of people, going from 10 million to even 15 million.

It is proposed that the larger countries are the ones that should be eligible to provide us with pharmaceuticals, but China pitches in and argues that we should focus more on ensuring everyone's safety and finding the terrorists who are endangering our medicine before focusing on supplying the pharmaceuticals. It is also stated that although world trade is important among all nations, it's also the cause of these tragedies and why death rates continued to increase.

With all this, Algeria increases security so that no pharmaceuticals make it in, and Ecuador stops all pharmaceutical exports. But with everyone trying to take a stand, the citizens of these countries were in even more danger. They needed their medication and were super displeased with the stopping of the exports. So all the "safety precautions" really did was only put everyone in jeopardy.

During the conference we interviewed some delegates but one interview stuck out to us. A delegate from Ireland had stated that due to contaminated import from U.S they took the action to improve security and border control which checks for traces of fentanyl in their pharmaceutical products. They believe that the U.S should have an internal investigation due to their security being breached. In addition to that they think that other countries should contribute to helping the U.S due to their "poor economy and bad FDA regulation" They also had opinions about Beijing, China proposing that they would help struggling countries and ask other countries who have strong trades, shipping companies and etc to contribute. Although it seems like a good plan they implied that they refuse to work with small countries and leaves them to fend for themselves as small countries wouldn't normally have a strong trade/shipping companies. Ireland has disagreed with China's solution that they still have resources and knowledge they can contribute. They ultimately decided it's better to team up with other countries.

Crisis Update:
Terrorists place Fentanyl
In Pharmaceuticals, the whole world panics!

BREAKING NEWS! A new Nordic terrorist organization known as Craig places the dangerous drug Fentanyl into all pharmaceutical exports coming out of the U.S. They have said that they are tired of neutrality, and that is what caused them to come terrorize the world. This poisoning has resulted in millions overdosing, which can be done with as little as 2 milligrams. The symptoms of Fentanyl poisoning/overdosing are vomiting, pale skin, blue swelling (especially in the extremities), choking, and extreme fatigue due to the depletion of oxygen in the brain. Victims will most likely die once they fall asleep, however, the drug named narcan is able to block the effects. As disrupt occurs, countries try to fend off, if not stop, these horrific acts.