Delegates debated possible solution or strategies , including AI databases graphing and monetering weaponry manufactory and straw selling a. The discourse highlighted the alliance's need to conduct background checks, AI databases and, maintaining unity among its member states. Some countries advocated for a task force of individuals who are specialists whit background registration, while others urged to increase legal consequences to help discourage weaponry violence.

The UNODA committee convened to address escalating tensions in Eastern Europe, focusing on collective defense strategies such as having ticking devices on all weapons since they are first manufactured. to hybrid warfare, including cyberattacks and misinformation campaigns. While some Countries have the same ideas and goals other Delegates such as Australia had doubts about fellow delegates proposing to Use AI databases as that they were concerned about there citizens privacy and confidentiality. The discourse highlighted the alliance's need to modernize its databases in which the manufacturers weapons would be monitored and tracked to ensure they we handled without harm to others but also to oversee any irregular activity in purchases of weapons by a certain individuals or a mass amount of product being purchases ,and finally abnormal payment methods. Some countries advocated for aded benefits to manufacturers of weapons that would allow there precesses to be overseen by the organization . The debate underscored the challenge of balancing national interests with the collective mission of maintaining peace and stability in the region.

Delegate Interview

An interview with the delegate from Austria had a proposition that entailed a "one to one" ratio.The delegate highlighted the importance of this ration as it entails that if a person was to buy a gun and somehow ended up whit another individual they were to be charged whit a felony as they are not the owner of that said weapon The representative reiterated Austria's dedication to cybersecurity and background checks as priorities for global safety. When questioned regarding funding during formal session, the delegate responded, "That Austria would start this organization whit funding from the International Monetary Fund and hopefully later on when countries are more established they in return fund the organization a bit in favor of there help they received." The statement was noted during moderated caucus discussions on collective strategies.

UNODA Crisis

There is a global attack by a group of billionaire fanatics with a private military, which has caused numerous civilian casualties in cities such as Paris, Shanghai, Sydney, New York City, and Berlin. Groups including NATO, Briks, or the UN, have not interfered to save people. In NYC, one recorded attack shows a really bad situation with no military involvement, which let to evacuations. The private military may have further plans, as the government does nothing.
