Wow, Sunshine and low 60's.... It felt like that one day of reprieve from the harsh winter we have been having. We know it is only one day and then resumed more seasonal February temperatures, but one day meant a lot. In addition, we enjoyed seeing the snow and ice melting away. It was like God giving us a day off from winter. People were out much of the day running to different places; several doctor appointments, lunch, etc., so it was nice to be out.

In life, we can certainly have tough stretches where the battles are fierce. Perhaps it is illness or chronic pain. Maybe dealing with the death of a loved one and the grief of that loss. Perhaps it is home repairs and the challenges of trying to get something fixed around the house or car repairs and the subsequent bills for those repairs. Perhaps a job loss that sets you back as you regroup in your life and try to find another job. Or it could be a relationship issue where things have come unraveled and you work to repair the relationship. There is much in life that can provide setbacks and hardships. Life is not easy and conquering life is not for the weak of heart. It takes courage to climb those mountains and keep looking up to better days.

One day can be just the reset you need. Sunday for the Christian is like a reset day. We take the time to enjoy worship with God's people. It can be that "sunny" day after a long stretch of clouds and cold weather. That is the whole purpose of the Lord's Day; to be a reset day as you allow your spirit to catch up to your body as you are nourished with the Word of God to feed your spirit and strengthen you for the week ahead. On Monday, we go back into the world, the workplace or the arena. Sunday is our day to find that refocus and renewal through the joy of being in God's house with God's people and getting further equipped with the Word of God.

I hope you have many sunny days ahead in your soul, but know this, when it gets cloudy or cold around you or in you, God loves you and He is there to lift you up on His eagle's wings and assure you of His promise from Isaiah 40:31, "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength, they shall run and not be weary, they shall walk and not faint."

Just a reminder that we are starting a Grief Share ministry on March 3rd here at the church for people who have loss loved ones in death. It's a great ministry to help people cope with the grieving process. It runs from 6-8 pm each Tuesday for 13 weeks. And it's free for anyone that wants to come to it. We can only handle 10 people at time so if anyone is interested, please get in contact with me to see about registration. If you would like to volunteer to be a part of our team, let me know also.

Blessings to all...Jay

The Last Trumpet by Max Lucado

Christians, upon the signal of Christ, will be transported into the presence of Christ. This rescue will be activated by the conclusion of the church age. Or, as the apostle Paul wrote, when "the full number of the Gentiles come in" (Romans 11:25 RSV). The Lord will come with a loud command. At his side will be the sole figure identified in the Bible as an archangel—Michael—the great foe of Satan.

We will hear a trumpet at the rapture. Roman soldiers learned to respond to three types of trumpets. The first prompted them to rise and strike their tents. The second announced it was time to fall into line. The last trumpet was the signal to march away. Christ will signal for us to march away—either out of the grave or off the earth—and "we will be with the Lord forever." Hallelujah!
