

Betty's Backyard Butterfly

Betty was walking home from school one day with her friend Tom.

Suddenly, a green and yellow butterfly flew down and landed on Tom's red cap.

"That must be good luck!" said Betty.

Tom stood very still. He did not want to scare it.

The butterfly slowly flapped its wings and fluttered away. Betty wished to see the butterfly again.

The next day after school Betty walked home with Tom. But they did not see the green and yellow butterfly.

What do you think Betty should do?

Betty's Backyard Butterfly

In school Betty learned that butterflies like flowers.

That's it! She was going to grow flowers in her backyard!

Betty and Tom planted seeds of pink, red, yellow, and orange flowers.

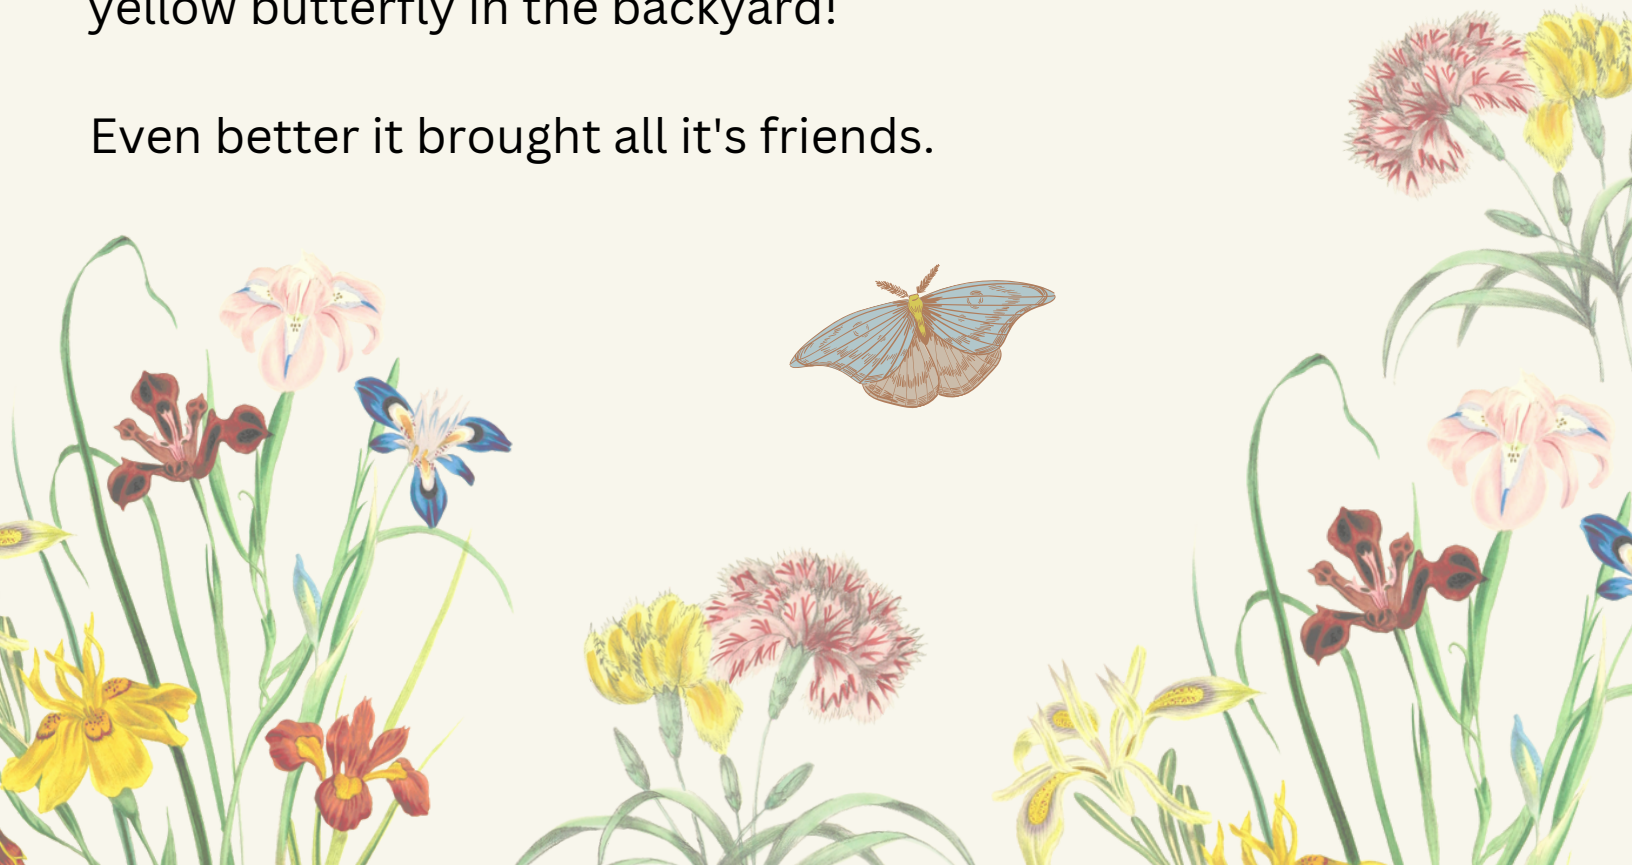

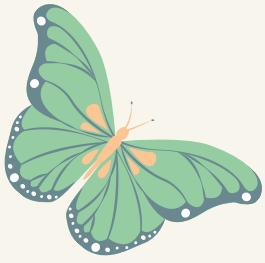

"Now we wait until they grow into flowers!" said Tom.

Every day after school Betty and Tom went in Betty's backyard.
The flowers grew bigger and bigger.

One day Betty looked out her window and saw the green and yellow butterfly in the backyard!

Even better it brought all it's friends.

Why did the butterfly land on Tom's red cap?

---

---

What did Betty and Tom need to grow flowers?

---

---

