DAVID AUSTIN® ROSES

THINGS TO KNOW ABOUT GARDEN ROSES

- Colors vary: Garden roses are capricious and tend to vary in their colors. Even roses from the same bush cut on the same day have been known to have different shades and tones. Do not expect them to all be exactly the same. This is their character. This is what makes them special.
- Point of Cut: Garden Roses need to be cut at a certain point of cut to minimize damage during shipping. With water, food and affection they will bloom and perform incredibly in the vase growing to 4 or 5 times their original size.
- Availability: Although we have significantly increased our production, we expect demand to be high. Please reserve your roses from your favorite supplier with ample time.
- Full glory: most of our roses will be at their best 4 days after being placed in water. Their impact is tremendous when you use them when they are ripe. To accelerate their development, place them at warmer temperatures. To slow the development down, place in the cooler.
- Care and Handling: Garden Roses are delicate! Please follow the care and handling instructions when processing
