

RESOLUT

Commercial Pricing Strategy

Version 4.2

Commercial Philosophy

Resolut is not sold as software.

It is participation in a Continuous Trust Infrastructure.

Every participant whether an individual, organisation or enterprise receives immediate value by joining the network. As their responsibilities increase, the platform expands with them.

Customers do not pay for users, documents or transactions.

They pay for the level of responsibility they assume within the network.

The Continuous Trust Infrastructure is built upon two identity layers: trusted individuals and trusted organisations.

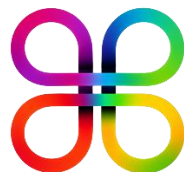

Resolut Solo establishes trusted personal identities.

Resolut Pro establishes trusted organisational identities.

Together they create continuously verified relationships that enable compliance, assurance and governance to operate across entire enterprise ecosystems.

Participation creates relationships. Relationships create intelligence. Intelligence creates trust. Trust creates value.

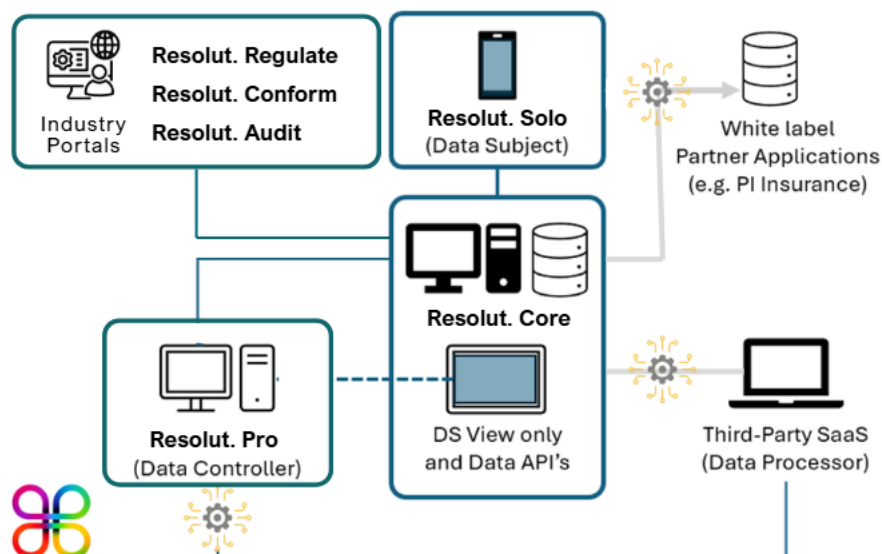

This philosophy underpins every commercial decision.

Commercial Architecture

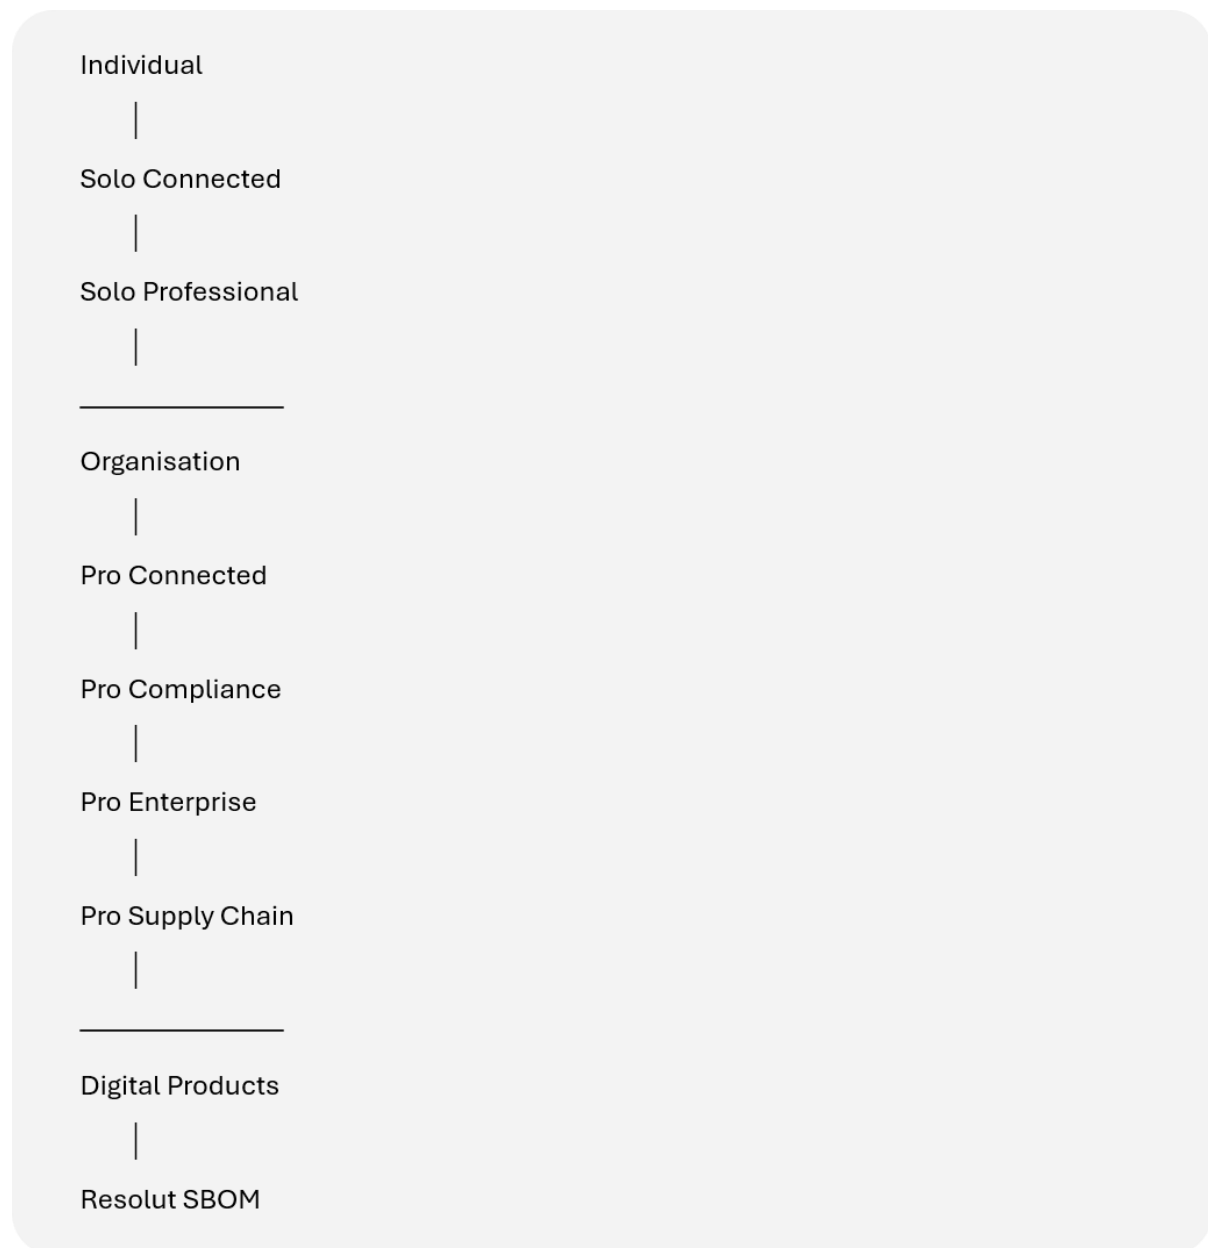

Resolut is built upon a common infrastructure with products designed for different participants within the network.

Commercial Journey

The commercial model mirrors increasing responsibility within the Continuous Trust Infrastructure.

Every stage builds upon the previous one. Nothing is replaced. Everything expands.

Pricing Principles

Resolut follows five commercial principles.

- 1. Everyone should be able to participate.

Entry into the network should be frictionless.

- 2. Responsibility determines value.

Pricing reflects responsibility - not software consumption.

- 3. Networks create enterprise value.

Every participant strengthens the intelligence of the wider platform.

- 4. Simplicity wins.

Customers should immediately understand which product matches their role.

- 5. AI should accelerate adoption.

Artificial Intelligence is included as part of the platform experience rather than sold as an optional feature.
