

We've made it easy.

Tax-deductible donations to the Northwest Examiner Local Journalism Foundation can now be made via this link:

We know that contributing to the work of the NW Examiner has not been simple in the past. Our requests for support have involved hand-addressing envelopes and writing checks in a process reminiscent of an era when cutting out box tops served as verification. And the checks were not deductible.

We've made it easy because it is so important. Advertising and subscriptions alone are not covering the costs of postage, printing and necessary overhead to produce the paper every month. The future of unfettered independent journalism—rooted in and committed to our neighborhoods—is in your hands.
