Under the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), privately owned businesses that serve the public, such as restaurants, hotels, retail stores, taxicabs, theaters, concert halls, and sports facilities, are prohibited from discriminating against individuals with disabilities. The ADA requires these businesses to allow people with disabilities to bring their service animals onto business premises in whatever areas customers are generally allowed. Emotional support animals are governed by the Fair Housing Act, a federal law that allows individuals to have their emotional support animals with them in their apartments or homes with valid documentation of their conditions.
