WHAT IS PUBLIC ART...

& why is it important to my city?

Public art is not an art “form.” Its size can be huge or small. It can tower fifty feet high or call attention to the paving beneath your feet. Its shape can be abstract or realistic (or both), and it may be cast, carved, built, assembled, or painted. It can be site-specific or stand in contrast to its surroundings.

Public art can express community values, enhance our environment, transform a landscape, heighten our awareness, or question our assumptions. Placed in public sites, this art is there for everyone, a form of collective community expression.

Public art is a reflection of how we see the world – the artist’s response to our time and place combined with our own sense of who we are.

TWENTY6NORTH HAS CURATED & COMMISSIONED 50+ MURALS IN BROWARD

Over 34,000 square feet of walls painted in three years.

Chief art curator Maxence Doytier shares his thoughts working with the NHL FL Panthers and Artist Carlos Solano with a 100' x 40' mural in Fort Lauderdale...

"We believe continuously supporting public art in our city adds enormous value to the cultural, aesthetic, and economic vitality of our community. Working alongside Carlos Solano and the FL Panther's creative team to bring their national brand to a local level really shows their tie to the city of Fort Lauderdale. This mural is a landmark for locals and tourists to appreciate year-round. It brings our company joy to continue supporting our local art community and adding more public art to beautify our city."
