LEE ARTHUR DAHLBERG

Lee Arthur Dahlberg was born in Amelia Island, Florida. He grew up surrounded by creativity, inspired by his mother and grandmother who were ballerinas and Broadway stage performers. From a very young age Lee was heavily influenced by his amazing role models always helping to build the sets and performing on stage. Lee's imagination was free to roam and was fully expressed in countless productions throughout his childhood.

His painting career launched with his first series "Collisions" at Art Basel in 2002. This series was a visualization of his poetry with each piece telling a story from head to foot. "Collisions are where thought, meets picture, meets paint...the collision of the three." This collection showed for 4 years and contains over 100 pieces in the series.

Lee's love for building furniture and design brought him to a new chapter in his creative career. He created a studio called "YouSonofaBench". It was here he began creating a dynamic style of art and furniture that consisted of repurposed and reclaimed materials. "Using found items and whatever nature provides makes my designs organic expressions of art...the rough metal mixed with emotional imagery creates my Industrial-Pop Art."

This brings us to his latest series... "Amer-Iconic" where he merges two Iconic & Americana images. Lee then bonds the new image to classic auto parts & reclaimed road signs creating his Industrial-Pop-Art. This series has created an important impact in Lee's artistic career, bringing him the opportunity to premier along side Romero Britto & being hung in The Andy Warhol Museum.

Lee Dahlberg uses old & reclaimed materials & gives them a second life wrapped in new ideas. This year marks the 12th Art Basel that Lee Arthur Dahlberg has shown his pieces.

G STAKIS

The origins of G-STAKIS's professional career began at the age of 19 when he moved from his home town Boca Raton to the island of Rhodes, Greece. There he lived with the monks of los Nicholas Monastery as they taught him the 2,000 year old techniques of Byzantine Art. After two years of rigorous training and disciplined living, he was ordained an iconographer giving him the title of his two childhood heroes, Leonardo Da Vinci and Michael Angelo.

He would learn a lot from the monks and their way of living, not just about art, but life and the important values and morals he would carry with him throughout life. Perhaps the best lesson he would learn, would be that of telling a story through art and cultivating the imagination to bring art from idea to form.

Today he continues his studies of philosophy, scriptures and ancient mythologies to better enhance his art and understanding for life. His work is sprinkled with hidden symbols and allegories to give it an extra flair of craftsmanship and deeper meaning.

One of them being David Lebatard (LEBO) a well known miami artist who invited him to his studio in which the fire was lit . LEBO was encouraging and this led to Pierre completing his first painting in April of that year.

THE GABRIEL SOUTH BEACH DREAM OF DESIRE

It all started eight years ago after working with Brendan ,after leaving saint Tropez for Miami. Thibault (Thibo) was pursuing his dream to take a dent in the fashion world , creating his brand 'Dream of Desire' alongside childhood friend Flow , Thibo was finally able to express his outlook on life through art and clothing .

Thibo got his foot in the door when artist and painter Brendan Murphy offered him a job as his assistant for Brendan's start up clothing brand that was mixing art and sports. Brendan mentored Thibo into expanding his skills as a painter, and designer ...

Down the road, Thibo was able to advance his experience and skill set as an assistant stylist for Milan Vukmirovic . Milan gave Thibo an opportunity to see deeper into his desire to build the dream he had to make a streetwear brand that fuse art and fashion . This creative relationship is still adamant today ,

Fast forward, today, Dream of Desire has dived head first into the fashion world . Thibo has been involved in professional photoshoots for leaders in the fashion industry , he has developed his brand beyond only clothing to include acrylic paintings and stencils work , and his desire never faded and the dream never lost ...the story in the clothing represents the raw emotions of a rebel which cause is to never gave up on his dream.
