

LOPEZ ISLAND

OPEN BURNING SEASON ENDS AS OF MAY 31ST

The open burning season comes to an end as of the last day of May. All San Juan County burn permits expire at that time. Depending upon weather conditions at the time, burn permits will be available again starting in October.

Recreational fires are still allowable and do not require a permit. To qualify as a recreational fire, the burn area cannot be more than two-feet in diameter, and be centered in a clear area at least six feet in diameter. Designated campfire rings at developed campsites meet this fire safety requirement.

Should weather conditions become very warm and dry this summer or fall, a total ban on outside fires may be instituted. Should that become necessary, signs will be posted around the County, and all media outlets will be notified.

<https://www.sanjuanco.com/1088/Fire-Marshal>