To whom it may concern,

Please find the following reference for Jennifer Lauxman McCorkell. We engaged Jennifer to provide a spinning workshop for our participants and to do a spinning demonstration as part our 'Making Leeds Medieval' event that closed our conference in 2013. Both events were extremely successful: the workshop was fully booked, with all participants enjoying themselves, and the demonstration helped to make 'Making Leeds Medieval' a success with both our delegates and with the University community.

Working with Jennifer to coordinate these events has been a privilege. She is both enthusiastic and highly professional, and was willing to work to our (quite strict) deadlines so that the relevant information could be included in the printed programme several months in advance of the event.

The International Medieval Congress is Europe's largest event in the Humanities, bringing together more than 1700 scholars from around the world to take part in a programme that includes keynote lectures and academic sessions as well as hands on workshops and excursions to sites of historic interest. As an event of this nature, it is important that we offer events and demonstrations that are not only of high quality and enjoyable for participants but are also historically authentic. Jennifer's work excelled in all of these factors.

In short, please know that I recommend Jennifer in the highest terms. I am happy to be contacted if you require any further information.

Yours sincerely,

Dr Marta Cobb
