Josh Blakesley has acknowledged a simple calling: To make music that moves people into prayer and action.

As a songwriter, specifically for liturgy in today's era, the question that provokes Josh is, 'how do I create a song that will honor traditions yet speak to the modern Church and lead them to worship?' So, he collaborated with his guitar player, Grae McCullough, to write a new mass setting, paying homage to the hymns of the past and the current culture of modern worship.

In spring of 2017, he released the long-awaited project through OCP called Mass of Restoration: Acoustic Sessions. You can find more information by visiting visitocp.org and searching 'Mass of Restoration'.

Josh continues to tour heavily with his band, playing at churches, youth and adult conferences, camps, and more. Currently he is the Music Ministry Coordinator for St Faustina Catholic Church in Fulshear TX where he resides with his wife Heather and their two children, Sophie and Sutton.
