Quality Assurance at TruServ Aviation

At TruServ Aviation, we are committed to excellence in aircraft parts distribution by adhering to the principles outlined in FAA Advisory Circular AC No. 00-56B, which addresses the accreditation of civil aircraft parts distributors. While we have not pursued certification from an accrediting body, our internal processes and procedures are firmly aligned with these guidelines. This ensures that every part we distribute meets the stringent eligibility standards required for installation on U.S. type-certificated products.

Although participation in an accreditation program is voluntary, we have chosen to independently implement the recommendations of AC No. 00-56B. This decision reflects our dedication to maintaining the highest industry standards and keeping pace with evolving regulatory requirements and best practices. By embedding these principles into our operations, we proactively ensure the safety, reliability, and airworthiness of the components we supply.

In summary, our voluntary alignment with FAA AC No. 00-56B demonstrates our unwavering commitment to safety, quality, and integrity in aircraft parts distribution. We are dedicated to exceeding expectations and maintaining the trust of our valued customers through our steadfast focus on excellence.
