Dear Friends,

Nearly four years ago, I answered the call from many of you to run for Chatham County Commissioner in District Four. I humbly stated in my introductory letter that, as a Chatham County native who has been influenced by her parents' activism, "my reason for running for office is to give back to this community."

Katie
Kenlan

Now in my fourth year on the county commission, my commitment remains steadfast and you are one of the first to know that I intend to run for re-election. I'll need your support, particularly in this time of fraught political rhetoric and divisiveness.

I continue to honor my pledge to you to work with all stakeholders in the rapid changes that are happening in this county. My priorities remain firm - a thoughtful approach to the county's rapid growth, ensuring safe drinking water and the protection of our natural resources; facing affordable housing challenges, addressing the impact of climate change on our county, and - as a former teacher - supporting our schools.

In four short years, I've played a key role in reducing the county's property tax rate, securing the county's fiscal standing at measurably high standards, steering important tangible support toward farmland preservation, establishing greater financial incentives for our county schools' teachers, and urging stronger environmental standards in our land-use planning. And that's barely the start of a long list of achievements on your behalf.

I mentioned that I need your help. Today a viable campaign in Chatham County requires reaching tens of thousands of likely voters - and newly registered voters, too. I am reaching out directly to my supporters now. The costs are substantial and it will take contributions going toward my own specific campaign expenses, but also supporting all of my fellow Chatham candidates who share my stalwart priority of serving our citizens up and down the ballot. You have believed in me from the start, and your support will be crucial to my campaign's success.

I hope you'll join me. I look forward to seeing you soon and I humbly ask for your support and your vote.
