FIELD LINE

As a leading supplier of air gun pellets, the RWS brand is famous worldwide for its excellent quality and technology. Many decades of experience in producing Diabolo pellets form the foundation for this impressive technical advantage.

RWS air gun pellets are characterised by a very careful choice of materials, a special surface finish and optimised weight. This guarantees products of outstanding precision.

RWS match pellets are all manufactured in the classical Diabolo design. Head guidance, skirt section and the special form of the pellet head-plate are decisive for optimal stabilisation of the pellet in the barrel and also for clear cut shot holes. Even tighter production process tolerances, combined with strict test requirements have made it possible for us to further optimise precision – redefining quality.

Both these facts and the innovative package design characterise the RWS air rifle and pistol pellet range of the future. The product range offers a comprehensive selection of high-precision pellets for competition and training, as well as numerous special shapes for special applications.

Five clearly structured product lines make it easy for you to find the right choice for every kind of application. Whether for shooting in international competitions or in clubs, for training or amateur sport events – RWS air rifle pellets always guarantee top reliability and precision.

RWS is an official partner of the National German Shooting Team.
