

Tasting Notes

Our Distillers Select Bourbon Whiskey and Rye Whiskey are premium products that use the same four grain mash bill, yeast strains and tradecraft. While used in different proportions for the bourbon and rye whiskey, all four major grains are imperative to develop a full featured and balanced expression. It is impossible to create two barrels that are the same - even from the same identical distillation run. Each barrel from the same run will evolve to a different level of maturity and quality during aging.

It is the privilege of the Master Distiller to recognize, select and blend these premium barrels into a high quality small batch product. While barrels differ each small batch bottle will be consistent, predictable and repeatable every year and every batch..

Our single barrel expressions are a natural work of art. Instead of being blended with other barrels, each barrel is processed uniquely. Depending on resulting volume left in the barrel, each bottle may be derived from one single barrel or a run of identical barrels as determine by the master distiller. .
