HAMILTON COLLEGE OBSERVATION RELEASE

As part of our program and relationship with Hamilton College, students are permitted to observe the children in the classroom for their studies. At no time will children be left alone with a college student.

Hamilton College students may also write and submit summary and interpretation of their observation in fulfillment of an academic requirement. It is my understanding that these observations and interpretations will remain confidential and that the child will not be identified in the write-up.

Additional consent forms will be sent home, if needed for student research. I understand that student observation is part of the CELC program.
