

Chinese Lamp

A bird on a bright red flowered branch
Looking over to the clear horizon
While a man is looking beyond
To the open landscapes
His thoughts scattered
Somewhere in time
A little house snuggled by the river
With mountains dangling overhead
In the silence of a garden
Watching his trees and flowers
A man observes their beauty
With admiration
To feel their beauty to the fullest capacity
A couple of companions are looking
Beyond the majestic mountains
Exchanging warm glances
While two birds sit together
Companions also cozily situated on a branch
Sitting among the silent beauty
On this Chinese lamp
This beauty will give others happy moments also
As I am sitting in this restaurant
Enjoying the beauty of an artist

Renata Dawidowicz

Published in: "The Poet"

On page 18 - Winter 86 / 87

