

Essence

Catch the essence of now

Two round dart sets on a green velvet background

Different horn instruments situated around the vicinity of the room

A saxophone in an old used case with red velvet

Is in front of me at the bar counter

I can see by it's worn condition

It has been put to good use in times past

A wedding party stops by for drinks dressed so swell

A large black flowered hat and a long straight black dress

Makes a very distinguished sight

Talk about the past and what happened to who

It seeps with memory of what was

Where it's all headed too

The romance of now

The wedding is on when the bridal party arrives

It's total magic

The beauty of time

Renata Dawidowicz

Published in: "The Taylor Trust"

On page 21 – Volume 1 – January – March 2009

On-line-"The Taylor Trust: Poetry & Prose"-2009

