

Flicker

The calmness of the water
Catches my view
As darkness takes over the night
Lights flicker once in a while
To give some glimmer
To this wide stretch before me
The path narrows now
And is crowded in by the trees
There is hardly anyone around
To distract your total dedication
Of the scenery
Knowing soon fall will appear
You can feel it in the air
The scent of the new seasons
Letting the old one slip by quietly

Renata Dawidowicz

Published in: "Ashes to Ashes"

On page 35

