

Unknown

Destination unknown to us right now

Takes you away forever

You never retrace the same exact path

Railroad tracks stretch into the distance

As two pigeons examining their scenery real casually

Diligently walk along the tracks

Like a tightrope on the rails

Till all of a sudden they emerge from their walk

And they fly into the distance with their wings outstretched

On a fabulous summer morning

As the cars and trucks are all traveling on the overpass to work?

Wherever it all takes us

We are all along for the ride

Doesn't matter about the transportation

There's a way!

Renata Dawidowicz

Published in "Senior Living News" – Oakland County

On page 18 – January 2008