

The Oliver Typewriter Company - O74

Edward S. Hoyt (#292)

"Peculiar Pattern O74" by Harry Rickard conjectures that the letter "O" is partially open as the result of an inexperienced employee and poor quality control. The illustrated cover disproved this theory.

Please note that the open letter "O" in perfin pattern O74 is intentional. It follows the design of the letter "O" of The Oliver Typewriter Company. I hope than no one decided to pull their copy of O74 thinking that it was an error or bad punch.

