Simple not Easy

Welcome to your five part psychic yoga adventure in self reflection and life engineering, an adventure so simple it may be done with out leaving your favourite place to sit and be. The you that sits and reads these words, is armed right now with accumulated life experiences' and memories of your unique life adventure. You have all you require to participate in the Limitlessmile adventure, and you have all you require to solve the puzzle that is your life, to activate your most magnificent potential.

This Limitlessmile adventure is presented as a process of self-reflection. Where we explore and discover, a fresh understanding of who we are, of what we require to be, to do, and to have, to claim this life as an amazing romantic adventure of mystical proportions. Limitlessmile looks into and presents an amalgam of work from the realms of psychology, esoteric philosophy, new age thought, astrology, tarot, yoga, common law and anything else it can get its hands on. Exploring the cutting edge of ancient wisdom. This adventure of exercises in self reflection are best enjoyed by going through them at least twice, once as you journey through modules one to four, in the initial collection of your personal database. Then after soaking in module five begin again armed with a deeper understanding of the mechanics of some ancient tools, and sniffs of the basic laws of our human nature.

In the life of all mankind there is a common desire to seek a life of happiness, simplicity, effortlessness and abundance. It is through choices made both past and present that affect your ability to access, feel and enjoy, the organic process and adventure of enlightenment. The process where you have more light as a result of inspiration, the infection by light, and become lighter through detachment, the letting go of burdens and any unnecessary gravity. Enlightenment is the flame that fuels the Limitlessmile, the smile so broad, so deep it cannot be wiped from your face. The smile that shines from the quantum field beyond and behind atoms and sub atomic particles, beyond and behind your living mind as a sacred geometric truth. Limitlessmile is an organic process that simply awaits your participation, your realization and is your human birthright.

Through following the steps within the modules of the adventure of Limitlessmile, you will explore and discover the components necessary for the recreation of your self. This is a journey where you will discover the fundamental basics, of the laws of nature and human nature. Everything you require is within yourself, and presented in Limitlessmile is the essence of techniques from many disciplines that combined with your focus and effort will reveal to you the steps toward the remembrance of your own Limitlessmile.

You will need to have a quiet space that you can retreat to, where you will not be disturbed and you are able to soak in and digest each step of the course completely. Now don't be alarmed, some may say quiet space is a luxury not available. For these busy people quiet space may be easily found in the middle of many things happening. Daydreaming can be done effectively in many places, in many situations.

Think of your imagination as a muscle, the more you work and challenge it, the stronger it becomes. So also does your muscle of visualization, even to the point where you will be able to imagine and explore ideas and their ramifications' so thoroughly, that you may feel you have all ready experienced them, and then may not need to go to all the effort of actually spending life force to manifest them. The more you stretch your imagination the more light may fit in, the more light you get, the less heavy you will be. En-light-en-ment

You require also a journal in which to keep your work, so as to read and reread what is prompted from your mindscape over the moments to come. This book is best set up in the fashion of being able to be pulled apart, so as to add in extra material or new pages as you go along. Consider your journal a living document that will change and transform as you do. Take your time as you work through the adventure, be sure to contemplate the thoughts presented and then, you daydream to collect the contents you will install in your journal. Remember this is your life you are working on here, and it deserves to have your time, attention, and most importantly be enjoyable. We want this adventure we call life to be a romantic adventure of mystical proportions, a never ending story reaching way beyond any imagined end, and a puzzle seeking to be solved for great reward. That's all!

What follows is really nothing new; all the information presented exists out there already in many forms. There are tons of books, many self-development courses and many self-development gurus offering a smorgasbord of ways and means of changing and transforming your life. What is unique in Limitlessmile is the synthesis presented, and in as few words as possible, get the ideas and essence across. The work here is for you to think about and enjoy the thoughts of many who have forever wondered about life.

Limitlessmile is an adventure of change, transformation and self-empowerment. One of the foundation elements will be your time to think and daydream. My suggestion is to make a change to your routine by simply beginning a new daily habit as soon as possible. After waking in the morning, be outside and walking. Go for half an hour at least to rouse the body and awaken the mind. Be as close to nature as you can manage. Begin this new habit (if you don't already) and set up the first important element for your Quest for change. As you develop the rhythm of your lone walk, or maybe take on the powerful space of meditation that bush walking or gardening offers, you will soon realize it feels like going home, each time your there. You may use the peace and focus of your morning meditation to develop a momentum, simply by getting into the habit of walking or gardening daily and also visiting your journal daily. Momentum is an essential assistant that will empower the whole process, and it is as simple as touching base with the Limitless smile adventure each day, even if it is only a brief moment to browse and acknowledge your journal. This time to walk will become a sacred space to plant the seeds of self-transformation and nurture them. It is important to keep secret your personal adventure as nothing destroys these fragile seeds quicker than the negativity of others. You may already employ meditation techniques in your life; meditation is a natural human process that many of us enjoy in many ways. There are many techniques available, with which we will go in to more depth in another module. We humans of western civilization require a means of occupying our mind to assist us in the contemplation process, walking works beautifully, not to mention it as being the most desirable and efficient exercise for the human vehicle.

The modules I am about to present deserve thinking about thoroughly, to explore the feelings you have about them and the critique you will find in your own mind toward them. All may be observed objectively, that is to not condemn or deny what is presented just observe yourself in your sacred space, and come to know your mind and the conditioned programs that are installed on your own hard drive. I will sometimes use computer analogies to explain our mind and its workings, simply because the computer has been created from the mind of human and is an extension of it. You may find that to view yourself objectively is a new idea, or something that you may have not indulged in very much. Like many things to do with the mind we seem to use it and be it, but rarely observe and seek to know and understand it. Sort of like fish coming to terms with the realization they are in water.

For centuries we humans have allowed others to have a monopoly on belief structures, to possess and direct the rights and designs on how we are to apply ourselves to our life and the possibilities available to us. Organizations claiming to hold the secrets to our human mystery have played upon our ignorance, our fears and our good nature to exercise a control over us.

Still on it goes, though the hold gets weaker and weaker as our collective herd moves further into the 21st century and becomes equipped with the power of knowledge. Knowledge once hidden is now freely available to all humans with the Internet being the herald of the information age we may all participate in.

Much of the confusion has centred around our common basic fears of death and our sexuality. Long have many claimed to hold the knowledge of the here after and our place within the scheme. There is plenty of speculation, though practical sense tells us that no one alive can relate to us an understanding of death. I mean total death not a near death experience or a trance state, natural or drug induced. A total death where the body no longer exists, it has returned to ash or dust.

The belief structures available to us seem to be shaped around the ultimate purpose of life and what to expect once you have shed your mortal carcass. You could debate till the end of time, the believer versus the non-believer and neither would be any closer to that particular truth till both are totally dead, returned to ash or dust.

That leaves us humans with one choice. To choose and create a belief structure which is most empowering to our personal life adventure. A structure that is separated from personalities and politics and is free of Ego and ulterior motives, like the simple in-your-face truths of geometry. As nothing can be proven conclusively it would appear we have self-permission to explore the supermarket of possibilities offered to us by the beliefs and the philosophies of the ancients and collage them into our very own, unique and self-empowering belief structure. A favourite speculation which we may continually evolve.

Let us define belief as being any guiding principle or faith that provides meaning, purpose and passion for life.

We are offered in metaphysics, views or models of the universe, as a means by which to apprehend an understanding of the reality we find ourselves within, when ever we care that is, to stop and contemplate the fact that we exist, and exist within the structure of the conscious living organism we call the universe. It matters not which model we choose to use to understand, only that we may find a personal means to have an understanding. An Understanding that is empowering, makes our heart sing, instils an enthusiasm for life and is unconditionally good for all.

So let us begin with a structure, very simple and easy to understand.

the oPPOSITEs

In the yet mysterious spirit of our being, we have come to know ourselves as a set of opposites. The most striking of course, being our life long education in the game of gender relationships. From birth time with our mother, through to finding a partner, and relating to all the other beings we share time and space with, we embark upon a journey of self-reflection regardless of whether we realize or not. Each and every action despite like or dislike is a reflection of our dance with the duality of life. From the satisfaction of love and lovemaking to the despair of destitution and loneliness, from construction and creation, to destruction and obliteration, war and peace, and political struggle, all is a dance of opposites in form, opinions, feeling and desire. These opposites are real, and as we observe and acknowledge them,

WHOLENESSs

Natural Law has it we in our true human nature seek to balance the opposites in a harmonious wholeness, our being and existing within wholeness is totally natural and doable for us all. We are all a part of the All and are encoded with wholeness. It is natural for us to be whole, as that is the simple nature of the universe. As beings we have allowed ourselves to live in fear of our magnificence. We have been so feared of our magnificence that we have taken on the limited paradigms of control over every thing to alleviate this unnatural fear.

In our simplest of fragmentation we have a left and right brain, our masculine and feminine sides, these recognised components are----

Left side of our Body and our Right side feminine brain- is the side of us that experiences wholes, patterns, relationships, connectedness, ideas, values, the side of us that yearns for wholeness, it is intuitive, imaginative, artistic, spiritual, compassionate, wise and creative.

Right side of our body and our Left side masculine brain is analytical, rational, reason, logical, deductive; it is the side we use to organize all that which we experience with our right brain. As a part of All we are naturally connected with inner knowing and intuitions which require to be narrowed down for interpretation and comprehension, the masculine side of the living soul is the doing side, it does the work of making sense of our reality, of breaking it down and investigating, analysing and charting, sorting and deciphering, figuring out and explaining, removing fear and solving the puzzle of life.

The feminine is absorbing the whole, knowing the All, the masculine is fragmenting, dividing separating and singling out the components of reality so to understand. These two functions work simultaneously and are equal in their importance, complimentary in their differences, the two sides of the same coin. The feminine is love, the total identification with All, the masculine is understanding, the prize of having experienced existence.

The feminine is Knowing and reaching beyond into the eternity and infiniteness of the universe transforming the unknowable into the unknown, the masculine is focus in the moment to transform the unknown to the known, to understand to create substance. Under-standing and sub-stance are essentially the same thing. Together masculine and feminine are Wisdom. Wisdom is the domain of the wise. Together they are reflection of the universe fulfilling its purpose to experience itself and become totally self-conscious, to enjoy life.

Humanity evolves into the balance and harmony of utter goodness, the magnificent potential of being All

Our collective humanity as a herd is awakening to its fundamental human nature of divine animality, a spiritually responsible earth honouring expression of utter goodness. This is the essence of the exploding numbers in the pagan and wiccan communities, humans simply awakening to their birthright of human sovereignty, living souls remembering their inherent sovereignty and expressing it appropriately.

Wise-ards are notion traders and paradigm wrestlers who continually collect, apply and upgrade guiding principles to live by while remaining open to learning and exploring all life has to offer for colouring brightly their each unique individual life adventure. You require no certainty to enjoy fully intellectual adventures, to explore the limitlessness of imagination. You do not need to have qualifications, licence, or permit to pursue and achieve enlightenment. You require freedom from dogmatism, from shoulds coulds our woulds to amplify your advantage in your continuously unfolding ability to imagine and know limitlessly who you truly are.

If it is correct these ponderings of left brain masculine and right brain feminine then the whole belief structure of religiosity which is faith based and relying upon your imagination, it would indicate it being a feminine process. The practical, analytical dealing only with what is is a masculine process. The masculine process would not leave being. In word alchemy to be-lieve is to go away from be-ing?

THE ELEMENTS

Now that we have observed that our reality is a set of endless opposites, let us look at another popular means of describing the wholeness of our reality. The Elements. They also appear to us as opposites WATER and EARTH the feminine elements and FIRE and AIR the masculine elements. There has been a long tradition of seeing the world and ourselves as a varying combination of these four. If you are unfamiliar with these elemental relationships, then as we journey through and work with the following modules you will come to understand them through their analogies. First we may simply observe our own physical experience of the elements, for me fire can cook my food and it may injure me if I do not play sensibly with it; water may sustain me or drown me, air allows my breathing to have me function, or it may mess my hair or blow my caravan away in a cyclone; earth provides me some thing to stand upon so to deal with the other elements and it may crush/smother/bury me. So all the elements operate in accord with my commerce with them.

Fire in meta-physics is compared to energy and enthusiasm, Water to feeling and emotion, Air to the realm of thinking and the mental, and Earth to sensuality, solidity and structure, whether it is physical structure or the structure of your personality. These analogies perform and interact as does the physical elements we know and experience in our every day life. It is this simple fourfold structure we are going to focus upon, and relate to, for four modules.

Below is a table of words.

Careful study of them will lend insight into what the authors of the elemental view of reality were getting at. Take some time to explore these words in the table, as they will reappear through out the modules. Read the table simply like this.... Thinking is to Enthusiasm, as Air is to Fire, etc, etc,

AIR	FIRE	WATER	EARTH
Thinking	Enthusiasm	Emotion	Physical
Ideas	Energy	Feeling	Structure
Thinking	Desire	Feeling	Destiny
Knnowledge	Adventure	Relationships	Possessions
Hearing	Sight	Taste	Smell
Respiratory	Generative	Circulatory	Digestive
Truthfullness	Ruthlessness	Humility	Impeccability

the sEEDs of dESTINY

At present our magic adventure lies trapped within the limits of our conditioned boundaries, our social consciousness, the status quo, the ways that we think and have been taught to think, and what we expect from life. Ponder these large and broad questions in your journal

We as awareness exist on the threshold between two infinities. External to our beingness, perceived thru our senses is the infinite physical universe. Internal for our beingness is the infinity of imagination. What externalities limit what you may dream within?

What conditioned boundaries limit your ability to access and apply passion to your life adventure? -- Why can't I get into it? Am I gauging my place in reality from that which I have been taught from religiosity or some other external authority?

What is your holistic notion for your participation with and relationship to reality?-- what is it all about? what is meaning and purpose for my life adventure? What extents do I imagine for my relationship to reality and the multi-faceted multi-dimensional universe. do I feel I have lived countless lives and will exist eternally ?

Whether you believe in atheism, or some god you are indulging in belief, the point being made in this limitless adventure is to simply realize that everything is speculation and it is wise to survey for the reasons that you hold a particular belief and ponder the notion that given no one really knows you may as well put together the most interesting fun speculation to wear into the mystery of life and creation. Though as we proceed we are identifying integrity as a necessary component for our fashioning our particular speculation.

Terrence McKenna identified that it is culture which is the operating system, like in our computers, that determine our application to our life adventure. We can't really get away from culture as it is like a collective ego that we wear. But we can be more deliberate in our choosing and installing modifications or extensions to our personal operating system. Do you run the standard windows, or apple, is it an old version or the latest, or do you operate linux which is a bit more involved, though capable of individualizing. So let us survey our operating system that we are using to navigate our life adventure.

What is the theoretical framework you use to give meaning and purpose to your life? Where did it all come from and who made it? Are you guided only by what one authority has told you to know? Do you explore the whole smorgasbord of humanities ethno-ethic expressions. From mayans to buddism and christianity, from hare krishna to islam, from new age mind boggle to simple practical, pragmatic, objective common sense observation of all that is our life and the world we are in.?

What makes your universe intelligible? Am I thinking and feeling for myself?

Do you use the faculties of thinking to plot your course, or do you use your feelings to feel your way?

Do you use an attitude of science and discovery so to approximate ever closer towards a true account of your reality? Do you endeavour to figure life out with your own thinking, pondering power?

Is the science of nature and natural phenomenon the only mode you have chosen for the true knowledge you consider in your personal application to reality? Do you employ the irrational? Do you use an attitude of science to employ the irrational? How do you relate to paradox?

In your thinking do you use a scientific attitude to determine your moves and choices? If so, do you use science in a descriptive application seeking what it is that you are doing here in this existence? Or is it a prescriptive attitude seeking what you ought to do to move closer to a truth that apprehends a clear, heartfelt and passionate connection to the whole of life? Or is it both?

Do you use an attitude of induction . Induction is the power of generalization which allows reaching out and collecting large parts of the bigger picture, so you may maximize your accumulated facts received from the senses. Then in familiarity with the volume of information, have patters appear and eventually laws and meanings emerge involuntarily, forming a living and evolving theory?

This attitude minimizes the trap of being deluded by false theories and existing limited paradigms. It also allows for when anomalies within your knowledge and experience arise and pile up around you, you may immediately form a new or revised theory. No outer governing structure obstructs a new way from being considered. A believe nothing, accept everything attitude. The ponderings of the notion trader and paradigm wrestler. The objective abstract realm of uranus or the Fool card in the Tarot.

In your life do you find ways and things in the world that do not add up , or do not align with the truth you uphold as your guiding principle? When these anomalies arise do you feel the limits of your present belief structures you use to live life?

If no new theory arrives to inspire new direction, frustration and disillusion will be the flavour of the day, a quiet dark serious melancholy that colours existence. Until that is, a light is seen emerging from the mass of information and knowledge that you hold and work your life from. Meditation upon the mass is to dwell upon and be with.

When a new way appears or becomes apparent there is a massive inflow of light in the form of enthusiasm, inspiration, excitement, passion and when the new way is felt completely and feels truly yours, then comes humour. Enthusiasm patiently awaits agreement between intellect and feelings and emotion.

A new way may be felt and stumbled upon as a notion and therefore not as yet rationalised, though the gut says yes, and within is felt the tremors of revolution and a leap of faith is made. Allowing reason and understanding to catch up with the power of hindsight.

The feminine mystical side of life is the side responsible for receiving and accepting, accumulating and allowing revelation. Upon which the masculine rational side of life then leaps, pro-actively decides, employs deduction, choses and takes action, and while so doing eliminates all that would stand in the way of the new structure.

The mystical side of life is the Dreaming

Our wildest dreams and fantasies exist beyond the present limits of time, money and ability, and it is through our limitless dreams we will find the seeds of our destiny.

Following is a guide to shape the work you will do in your journal. As you enjoy your work through this festival of notions you will come to develop a clear understanding of the elements, though do not worry if it is not clear as yet, as all the exercises in the modules will follow the fourfold shape of the four elements, and by working as closely as you can with them, you will allow it all to click at the appropriate moment.

Simply put, this first exercise is about writing and defining clearly your wildest dreams and fantasies. We all have hopes and dreams, but are they clear to you, have some order and do they cover the very extent of your whole life adventure. Remember be limitless in this exercise it will be valuable data for what follows.

Reflect these following associations

AIR	FIRE	WATER	EARTH
Knowledge	Adventure	Relationships	Possessions
Imagination	Ambition	Lovers	Achievement
Magician	Warrior	Lover	Sovereign

To assist us in the imagining process we will now add the magician, the warrior, the lover and sovereign to the table of elemental relationships. So now we are able to relate the function in our life relating to each of the elements by employing images of characters we may relate to.

The image of the magician relates to the Air, and is a symbol of our intellect, our imagination and thinking. That part of us that is magician in our life is responsible for our cleverness, and it will be expressed in your Magic journal as the area in your life you would like to be an expert, a master, in profession or career or hobby. Be a doctor or a master computer programmer, an astrologer, master counsellor, or maybe an expert parent, any endeavour where you use and express your thinking. Organizing, planning, strategizing, all the things that we employ sweat of brow to figure out. Our magician dreams, visualizes, draws up, configures, architects, our lifestage. Our magician is also our intellectual comprehension of our lore of law.

The warrior helps us to imagine the adventure areas of our life and give form to the element Fire, the things you would like to be involved in, in the world, The warrior is about things that require action and energy, like sailing the oceans or climbing mountains, to opening a coffee shop, or participating in a car rally or racing motorcycles, backpacking across the planet, riding bulls in a rodeo, anything that you feel will deliver you venue for your passion, feel inspired, enthused and provide outlet for your feeling totally alive. The warrior is simply where you feel the most enthusiasm, the most inspiration, insight,

The lover can relate the feeling and emotion, Water element of our being, to an image we are able to bring to our journal. Describe in as much detail as possible, your ideal partner, how they look, their personality, what they do and how they do it. Journey also into visions of your ultimate sexual gratifications. Orgasm and its pursuit is a powerful reflective tool when under objective scrutiny. This is a journey into the full extent of your imagination, so there are no boundaries, no limits... In your dreaming anything is possible, you are the master of this realm, so think of this as imagination exercises.

Feeling and emotion is not only the relationship we have with our lover, partner or companion, we have relationship with all the people of our world. Describe in your journal how you would like to relate and interact with all the different beings of your journey. Family, tribe, friends, colleagues, clients, strangers, is there some one you have noticed that has a warm or powerful way of expressing or relating that inspires you, they may be a useful template for this part of your journal. How would you like to sing your expression to the world?

The Sovereign is the King/Queen or ruler and source of power and resource in your life, Sovereign authority is complete absolute and uncontrollable, this is the EARTH element and is where in your journal you write of your desires for possessions, the type of house you see your self in, where it is, what is its view, what does it have in it. What other things do you see in the picture, cars, planes, helicopters, yachts, buses, anything that is a thing, something solid, any material thing you desire. You may prefer no things and sit upon the earth as a sovereign indigenous planetary creature.

Life also has a structure and the element Earth relates to structure, the Sovereign has a kingdom, and its structure ensures the harmony of the subjects who live there, those subject to that authority. The ethic you live by, the vibe of your ethos, the colour of your etheric, the values or morals you choose to install in your life is the structure of your kingdom, and also the structure of your character.

Make your life a better place for our world to be in Limitlessmile

In the privacy of your dreaming, allow all your wildest dreams and fantasies to flow through your mindscape; judge not, just allow and observe. You are on the look out for the desires and fantasies that confront the values and morals which are structured into your character, taught to you by your family and the social groups you are a part of. Our raw sexuality is our spirit, and it may be identified as our desires. To block or constrict observance of the expression of sexuality is to block spirit, to restrict the engine of our human machine. What sexual fantasies come to your mind that challenges the status quo of the beings you share this life journey with? Ancient wisdom suggests feeling is our yin-ness and desire is our yang-ness, so ponder your fantasies and determine if they are coming from feeling or desire.

If we call desire the motor of our vehicle and feelings the brake and accelerator, then we could say that it is values that are the fuel. What then are values, and what is the fundamental basic structure we use to understand how to install harmony and balance into our life, and all the other lives we connect to in this life adventure upon our planet. It is these questions that Limitlessmile will explore and ponder as we journey through the modules and their exercises.

Let us begin here with a look into defining what are the absolute basic components of the mechanical structure that we as humans have in common. What is it that regardless of what flavour/colour/gender human we are, is our basic same relationship with reality?

Human is conscious, and may look and sniff and hear and taste and feel. The information gathered from the senses as they engage in the experience of reality tells human immediately that there is in fact something happening and we are indeed in receipt of the impact of it through our senses. It registers to us that there is ex-is-tence and we ex-is-t. The senses record two fundamental sensations, pleasure and pain; these are our first gauges of the opposites we encounter in actuality. They are the first sign our bodies have of welfare, or injury. Joy or suffering are then the first measures our consciousness has, to gauge our perusal of any action. Every decision we make is either virtue or vice, either in accord or conflict with natural laws of matter or mind. It is upon these choices depend our physical, mental and emotional health and well-being.

As spirit we exist as the exotic erotic impetus for life seen in all nature; As awareness we are aware of an internal infinity and have ability to extend out through our senses into reality from a being human perspective; We are aware of and become cognizant of the laws of the universe; We have (ab)-originality, We have a race and culture; We have significant others and family and tribe and community; We have a gender; We feel sexual preference; We have ego so to wear out into the shared external infinity.

Lore is our living experience of the universe, it is our being aware of the chaotic wholeness of the mystery of life, and it is our identifying of patterns in nature, in human nature and the patterns in time we call cycles. Lore is observation that these living patterns of life of the universe as we know it, works to definite laws, axioms, maxims and self evident truths.

Law is the next thing we become aware of, that is natural law. In our existing, certain natural laws urge our reason to find truth of existence and our survival within and throughout. Gravity being the first impact of the forces outside our own self that urges us to acknowledge power greater than our own, leap or step from a cliff and discover the truth of falling. The laws of biochemical reaction allow us to live and access our energy from our food. The laws of the elements and their interactions; immerse in water and learn that being separated from air ends us, play with fire you may be burnt or ended etc.etc... These form the foundation stones of the laws that govern the whole of our existence. These are the elements

So we have an idea of the natural law and order, and note the immediacy of truths revealed. We obey these inalienable natural laws!

Truth as what is correct then will follow as being the next basic commodity necessary to have, for decisions made in regard to pursuit of being and staying alive. Sometimes truth is a difficult thing to determine, as there may be many truths determined by perception and context and opinion. So truth that becomes correct knowing is the truth we would rely upon to navigate our way further into space and time. We may confirm the basic opposites of right equals harmony and life and wrong equals disharmony and death. Simply put, being true to your self. Every choice we make is for our happiness or unhappiness no single choice is indifferent. Even though it is sometimes arbitrary to clearly define truth, to actually deliberately lie will ultimately destroy your mind.

Some truths are self evident and are what we call principals, axioms or maxims in different realms

Maxim--There is no disputing against or denying principles.

As to methods there may be a million and then some. But the principles are few. The man who grasps principles can successfully select his own methods. The man who tries methods, ignoring principles, is sure to have trouble. EMERSON

There is a fundamental law or principle of Mathematics, but none of error; there is a principle of health, but none of disease; there is a principle of honesty, but none of dishonesty; there is a principle of honour but none of dishonour; there is a principle of light, but none of darkness, there is a principle of abundance, but none of poverty; there is a principle of sovereignty, but none of slavery, and there is a principle of meek but none of greedy self interest.

Our mind is the only tool we have to judge the truth we receive from the experience of the senses, whose basic job is to present evidence of existence. Then it is our minds faculty of reason that receives and digests all information received from the senses and whose basic job is to interpret, gauge its rightness as truth and then install it, as the knowledge necessary for survival. We identify these as our inherent human quality of conscience and our capacities of being able to think, to know and discern good from bad and to understand the fundamental natural laws of the universe. We identify patterns with our feminine right brain and we analyse and deduct with our masculine left brain.

It is worthy here to ponder the point that not only is it that our mind interfaces the internal infinity with the external infinity, receives information from all the dimensions of our sensing and ponders it all within the inner infinity so to strategize what will be done in the shared external infinity, it may observe itself doing all. Being conscious of being conscious and being conscious of conscience, and being conscious of being conscious of conscience is also the magic capability of your own mind.

A virtue is a quality or practice of using notions of truth of rightness that leads to our individual and collective well-being and survival. Thinking is the basic virtue that allows us as humans to survive, and its opposite as vice which would be in its basic form, to not think.

So we as a human have the basic freedom of choosing to think or to not think, to act upon the information received from our senses, applying the effort of reason to apprehend its truth as means to survive; to identify principals. Then we design our movement forward safely in to space and time as a desire to live, to feel pleasure in preference to pain, to pursue joy in preference to suffering. We use the purposeful use of power applied to the use of reason, to decide what will allow our survival and can be counted upon to be true and enduring. What we seek to experience and the truths we dedicate to, ensure the rhythm is set. This may be viewed as our masculine function, our left brain of logic reason and focused attention, remember our other half our right brain is all about imagination, fancy, what if!

Desire balanced by reason and rightness and installed as knowledge is an ideal that we may aspire to and hold as a value. Desire (fire) is action emerged from the depths of our beingness, filtered through the balancing screen of reason and rightness (air), lived with colour of feeling and emotion (water) as an ideal and then given form and structure as a value, a real and transferable benchmark or standard. (earth)

We use our freewill to choose to think, to choose to apply effort of reason and choose to aspire toward ideals held as values, values that sustain our life and lead away from pain, injury and suffering. The values we choose to sustain our life are our code of morals What is the understanding of the differences between morals and ethics?

Word Alchemy may assist our understanding the difference between moral and ethic. Ethic is made up of E- as in energy, like in E-motion- energy in motion. TH- as in theology the study of the nature of god, so TH is the nature of god, and IC is a noun forming suffix which denotes being in the style of. So we have ethic- in the style of being gods energy. The relationship of the word Ethic to Etheric to Ethos to to Ethnic to Ethno-botanicals reveals the understanding that ethic is something that emits from life itself. It is a glow of goodness emitting from a living soul. It may only be worn and expressed.

A more-all is- we as an awareness seek to know and understand our world, we see the limits and boundaries of all things and ways of being. To know 'more of all' , we need morals, the external reasons for things and why reality is. So a living soul exploring and discovering reality becomes more of All by cognizing the morals of existance so to be able to shine brightly and appropriately their personal Ethic developed by coming to know more of all.

Let us put this also another way, as i sit and contemplate i observe that I am awareness and my awareness may be aware of my inner infinity where I am limited only by my imagination, this realm is internal to my senses and is a distinct realm separate to what I may call the shared external infinity where my awareness e - go out into the shared external infinity that we all share and where I may meet and greet all the other egos'. so ponder this - ethic belongs to my inner infinity and is something that expresses from within me, it is the familiarity I have of my notion of 'godness' which my ego may wear out into the shared external infinity, and morals are the external reasons for things which we use together in our shared external infinity, so we may all get along together.

We have that which we hold as a value, or its lack which we may call scarcity. The interaction between value and scarcity is the model we use so we may mammon commerce, also we have the sharing of abundance as an other model for our commercing. so we may say commercing may be the interrelationship of mutual exchange for what ever reason. It has been suggested that commercial law is the first and foundation law we have for creating our life adventure and determining our course thru it. At a fundamental level we may understand this by our need for oxygen and our commerce with the biosphere where we trade carbon monoxide for oxygen.

We observe nature and that we are an animal of nature; we require to align with the laws of nature and our animal nature. We observe in nature the rights of predator or prey, we acknowledge that we would prefer joy to suffering, so we would seek to be predator in preference to being prey. Although in this mystery we call the living universe at a soul level we are yet to understand the true nature of the possible benefits in the exchange of the predator and the prey.

This law of nature belongs to our raw animality, it allows us to take and to have and possess that which we want without challenge, and if we come across challenge just take it on. So armed with our divine intelligence we may magnify something completely, we have chosen to magnify our animal natures' right as a predator, we as humans have embraced completely with our greatest passion, our greatest cleverness to be completely our raw animal nature, and follow our instincts and drives.. Mankind has been completely his raw animal nature taking of nature all that he wants.

Human in our divinity seeks to reach to our most excellent potential, we strive to be the greatest, the best, the most powerful, the most amazing the most magnificent.

But with divinity aimed into our raw animal nature, the best we can come up with collectively is a trillion dollar war machine, armed to the hilt with nuclear war heads , able to push its own will to dominance. We have industry and power generation that takes, destroys and pollutes nature. We have a mammon corporatocracy that has hijacjed the organs of our collectivity serving first its selfish greed.

If we were to put this same human passion completely behind our divine animal nature, a higher octave of being human, then the world would ring with joy and laughter!

The following notions I call "dreaming the art of law", they are some components sat upon the supermarket shelves we may browse for our clarity. These are the nuts and bolts. How we assemble them in our own adventure is up to us. We are All subject to laws;- ponder what it is you are subject to and what is subject to you.

Lore - Lore is our personal knowledge from using our free will in commerce with the universe. Lore is our knowledge from experience of the eternal natural law of the universe which is self evident and is the self evident template for all law,

Steve Richards Holographic Kinetics definiton of Lore of Law

LORE is knowledge of the universe and when that knowledge is applied it unfolds like the petals of a flower awakening from its night sleep within its daily cycle of time, it consists of a system of laws and wave formation known as cycles, to stay in balance, swinging like a pendulum but always seeking balance as that which lies between the two opposing forces, within all created realities, action and re-action, cause and effect.

LORE consisting of laws that covers all dimensions and if you enter a dimension of another through your free will you are then governed by the laws of that dimension and as an equilibrium to that dimension, whatever is in that dimension may now enter your dimension, and take over, for that is part of LORE to keep balance with all creation.

Lore is linked to the laws of cause and effect, action and reaction, expansion and contraction, internalization and externalization and cycles of time.

Knowledge of LORE teaches that every thing is alive and can be communicated to, and must be acknowledged and respected as a life form; even our thoughts and all living creation seeks survival, within its own dimension of time, one dimension can transcend another dimension through time.

Laws of LORE are that man is responsible for his thought, word, deed and action and what ever creation you create, you in return must experience that creation as it was your creation and only by you experiencing your creation will you ever understand the experience as the giver and receiver of that creation, which in turn keeps balance. As you have now experienced cause and effect .

LAW— governing truth of a cosmos or realm, any governing correctness of existence

NATURAL LAW—the physical truths that control and direct our existence; gravity, the nature of the elements! Those dynamics of our universe that we are bound too and are subject too by virtue of our existing and directly affect our behaviour.

DIVINE LAW---utter goodness, our most magnificent potential, the imagined truths of god or cosmos that when lived, allows collective existence to unfold in perfect beat, rhythm, melody and harmony. The universal law of time used in astrology, the axioms of Sacred geometry, the revealed patterns of nature in Vedic maths, the insights of Quantum physics, and maxims of judicial law, the notion of intelligent design, abundance and sustainability in permaculture, all these and more aspire to define divine law.

The magic beauty of our universe is that it is not what we think. It is far more than we can think and so it may be anything we can imagine. At present on our planet we exist within a collective herd of feeble imaginations, despite the passionate participation in religions by millions, world peace and living harmony is far from realized. Just simply ask our mother the earth, and then see the answers in her landscape. Note surprise in your perspective of our living lifescape if you journey into the notions of permaculture.

The universal law of change.

Our universe is in a constant state of living dynamic change. Observation of our shared world reveals we may wear two ways of being with our universe. One is we feel and respond to life and universe as it being an external authority to which we require to be obedient to its commands and having us behave as a slave. The other is we identify and work with natural law and principles of nature and human nature and with correct use of our free will act as sovereign fellow creators.

Simple example is the Wright brothers who working with the natural law and principles of gravity created flying machines. In attitude of obedience to gravity we would not be flying.

Our ways of being with our universe are becoming more evident to us all as we identify how we behave in our each individual responses to being alive. How we commerce our life force with each other in our world is the very essence of the constant state of living dynamic change we affect into our shared world.

There is a divide of the paradigms where we leave the age of external authority and enter the age of self-responsibility. Leave the age of institutions and centralized power and become inter-dependant guilds of goodness. In this transition there will be much confusion, doubt, blame, frustration and offence.

Good reason to ponder these limitless notions and be clearer in your own self of that which is behind our behaviours and the living dynamic of change we may affect into our world every day.

Good reason to comb the shadows of our beingness for any unconscious behaviours which may thwart our affecting utter good into our world? What willful ignorance, fear, victim mentality, lacks of respect or self loathing colour our ability to commerce. Or what free will conscious co creation may we commerce.

COMMERCE - The dynamic interaction of all substance is commerce and as such is the highest law after natural law. All human interactions that you may imagine, relationships of any kind are a commerce, a buying and selling, a trading of any energy; any form of relating. It is all based upon 'do not do unto others that which you would not want them to do unto you'; the underlying law of mankind is commercial law. The fundamentals of exchange are either a sharing in love and enhanced interrelation or interchange, or a focus on profit, gain or increase with some consequent loss. Every action we enact into our life adventure is either an offer to contract or an acceptance or refusal to contract.

Either between our selves and an other, or ourselves and any substance or energy.

Commerce may be done in a material octave or a spiritual octave. As we contract our limitless spirit to meet another we establish a live connection which activates a current. This current is our currency of exchange, our living love and truth. We may invest our love and truth into this currency of exchange and if it is met with a genuine Interest we are positively enriched and become more for all parties involved. If it is met with self interested greed of Usury we are negatively impacted and are inequitably drawn from into depression and death.

In our shared world our living herd manifests this highest law as maritime admiralty law, where in maritime is written word commerce (As it is written so shall it be), and admiralty is by command of spoken word.

Become more intimate and clear with how you commerce in your life, at every level, especially in your intimate relationships. Clarity found by being more consciously knowing in your commercing will hold true for any commercing at any level. By being more cognisant of the fundamental mechanical structure of commerce will allow you to challenge the integrity of any commerce situation, in relationship, in business, in court, clearly and confidently. Be armed with the power of clear commerce in integrity.

At a soul level ancient wisdom indicates that our every commerce is recorded in our auric field as a vibration. As we collect these vibes they colour our auric field and ultimately colour our beingness and body--the physical living representation of that which is our soul. All that exists in the auric field ultimately operates like the books at the accountants where there may be piles of old accounts which when carry on unattended, unpaid collecting interest, become an ache which needs to be addressed and healed. So as any accountant might say, it is prudent to settle and close our accounts as we go along so we do not have complications and aches which grow to be serious problems, which do not become expensive oversights.

Commerce—any and all interchange between people, including but not limited by : the activity normally associated with the term, i.e. the buying and selling (trading) of goods and services; social intercourse; sexual intercourse (original meaning). All law is contract; and in every interchange between people a contract is formed; all commerce is a contract. A timeless maxim of law: “Contract makes the law”----- from 'Cracking The Code '

CONTRACT---to contract is opposite to expand. To commerce with an other living soul is to enter into contract. This is to leave the limitless expanse of spirit and contract our life force into the confinement of some common endeavour, to enter the contracted world of logos and egos. In simple terms we enter a marriage of common purpose, a bond, all commerce and contract is a marriage of degree. From mere moments to a life time marriages are sown throughout our entire life adventure. We may have access to infinite types of contract both positive and negative.

The nature of contract is the creation of a bond. In chemistry bonds are described as a strong force of attraction. Covalent bonds, ionic bonds, metallic bonds; the coming together of atoms and molecules to form compounds. Chemical bonds are what make matter matter. Bonds are what holds the physical world together. And so it is how we bond with each other as fellow members of our families, tribes, communities, nations and world that may hold us together or blow us apart.

If we look to natural law and what we may observe in the world of chemistry, it, like our pondering of the elements lends insight into the natural law that operates in our beingness at a physical level and in our collective social body beingness at a metaphysical level. We may ponder the nature of the commerce which happens in our life adventure and the bonds we create. To bond is to want to stick together and to want to stick together it happens with the mysterious force we all carry, called, desire. We might look at the shape and flavour of our desires to see the positive or negative values of charge we bring to any bonding situation.

The living force that makes the bonds bond in the atomic world is the negative and positive charges, the polarities of the living current of life force.

The mystery that is electromagnetic phenomena may be pondered simplistically as positive is something we draw in and negativity is something we cast out, discard, eliminate. The physics of life as described by Russellian Science (look up walter russell) has us ponder the mysterious exotic erotic desire for life and living to be the sexing of two fundamental forces of the universe, the genders. The centripetal contracting action of the force of dielectric play of positive and negative expression of manifesting creation with its immediate symbiotic centrifugal expansion back into the invisible, still, magnetic mind of creation, from whence it came. This is the source of all creation and the mechanics of life, whether it is how our heart works, how our planet breaths, how our sun functions, how our galaxy and universe breaths and functions. All are wheels within wheel fractals from the universe to the atom and all inbetween.

Covalent bonding is where the electro-negativity is similar and the reason they are attracted to bonding is that their sharing of electrons or charge packages allows them to experience that which is their aspiration. To be a noble gas. In their sharing of the electrons allows them to have access to the electrons necessary for them to look and feel like a noble gas. To access a more noble way of being you might say. Co- together, val- value, ent - inclined to performing/ causing. These are sort of like the bonds of marriage very strong and creating integrity, nobility for all involved say.

Ionic bonding has one atom needing an electron so to experience its quest to be the noble gas and the other needing to lose an electron so to achieve stability. In the mutual satisfying of needs creates the bond. These are sort of like the bonds of general commerce are rigid and display less flexibility.

Metalic bonding in their coming together create a pool of electrons to which they are all attracted and may all make use of and metals are flexible by nature. This is the bonds of community and our social activities where we enjoy getting together and sharing what we have brought to the party.

The living force that makes the bonds bond in the fabric of our social body is also positive and negative charges. We issue the charge with our words and our deeds and behind our words and our deeds we have our desires. We symbolize the value of our words and our deeds with the blood of our social body - money. And it is here in this physical symbolic representative of the blood of our social body we may see displayed the playing out of our desire and display of our integrity or lack of.

It is the act of bonding which holds our world together. It is the integrity of bonding which gives our world its integrity. We may look at the spirit of the bonding as where we may gauge the integrity of the bonding. The current spirit of our monetary system is Mammon. The attitude of the very bonding tool - money - seeks to draw life force or profit from, to use, to not show interest, or truly share, empower and enlighten.

As has been previously mentioned true interest is something which is given, Usury is something that is taken. Ponder the present management strategy of the monetary system- usury capitalism- does it exist to serve mankind as a collective organism sharing together the quest to vitalize and enlighten as a species, or does it exist to serve the few at the expense of the many who in their separated ego phantasmagorias extract life force so to make atomic bombs and nuclear power stations, enter black budget space and star wars programs, orchestrate corporate and bank war and prison profit, while cells of our organism still starve, while our biosphere suffers environmental degradation.

Simple ponder of the nature of observable natural law allows us a perspective of our sharing life breath and community in a more wholistic way. Your Life - Your Ponder.

Where have you contracted the limitless expanse of your spirit? Are you clear as to where you are contracting your life force? What marriages are you serving? What marriages are you creating? What is the integrity of your bonding? What is the integrity of your word? What is the seat of your desires - take give share.

The greatest power in commerce is identified by the scales of justice and what it is that they measure. Honour and Dishonour. To honour is to accept , unconditional love the purest form of honour, the purest form of bond, then unconditional acceptance which is grace, and then we have conditional acceptance where one seeks by discussion and negotiation to find agreement. Dishonour is identified as where we go silent, where we ignore, where we debate, petition, dispute fight struggle and ultimately war.

Ponder this insight in regard "fighting for rights"

We may identify a trap set for us in our justice systems where we enter dispute or petition and thereby give the authority the ability to claim we are in a state of dishonourable belligerence and therefore they have total discretion upon us and the matter we bring before them. So to remain sovereign in your commerce conditionally accept that all offers to contract or claims against you are to be honest, honourable, ethical, correct and in-the-fact . To remain sovereign one acts as the creditor wearing attitude of seeking to find solution through question and attitude of remaining in the high moral ground of acceptance.

The nature of contract is in communication and language and for our greatest protection correct use of language is a powerful means of establishing and maintaining our high moral ground.

It is worth the ponder that our desires generate thoughts and our thoughts become our words, and our words become our actions, our actions become our habits, our habits become our character and our character becomes our fate.

Destiny is the cards we are dealt

Fate is how we play them

QUANTUM LANGUAGE

There is a man who brings to our attention a notion where we may use a mathematically provable interpretation so we may identify fact from fiction. Quantum Language is a means by which we may use to quantify mathematically our written language. A mathematical interface for identifying correctness.

It is known also as 'correct-sentence-structure-communication-parse-syntax-grammar' and has been made available to us all by : Judge: David-Wynn: Miller.
(www.dwmlc.com)

(The use of the full colons : allow with the heiroglyphs of our language to have a word solidified as a noun, meaning that the full colon acts as a prepositional phrase. Therefore identifying : Judge: David-Wynn: Miller as a fact)

The quantum is for ensuring any contracts identify true substance, are in the fact, are indisputable in their interpretation. They are mathematically able to have your intent, purpose and meanings, mean the same forward and backward like a maths equation.

Why is this so, why would we need such a technology?

We exist in a world where our systems use artifice. These negative devices are used in the government and legal systems of our world and can be very painful for we who think that governments are benevolent, that men are basically good or that religiosities are also the same. The use of our language is an ambiguous endeavour and interpretation of what is said and what is written is at the mercy of a number of factors of defining the ultimate geomerty of cognition. This is acknowledged by it being a legal technology.. The use of verb technology in the writing has the geometry moving around and hard to pin down it becomes an opinion. Which is ok if you are not in a situation where you may be damaged by the choice of the use of words.

Artifice - 'ɑ:tʃɪs/ - noun -

1. clever or cunning devices or expedients, especially as used to trick or deceive others.

"an industry dominated by artifice" synonyms:trickery, deviousness, deceit, deception, dishonesty, cheating, duplicity, guile, cunning, artfulness,wiliness, craft, craftiness, evasion, slyness, chicanery, intrigue, subterfuge, strategy, bluff, pretence;

Factors affecting the defining of the ultimate geometry of cognition of the use of language.

from the universal legal technology.available fre on line @ <http://self-realisation.com/wp-content/uploads/2013/06/Universal-Legal-Technology.pdf>

: The Rule of Logic: “The writing appeals to our reason . . . the writing invites investigation, and . . . the writing is to be interpreted in context as any other writing, by the rigid application of the same laws of the language, and the same grammatical analysis.” the rule of logic uses the language and grammar rules to derive the correct context.

It may logical to assume the quantum syntax provides a mathematical proof of measurable integrity.

: Rule of Definition: Guy Duty’s formula states that “The beginning of the interpretation of any document is with the study of words. Define the terms and keep the terms defined. The interpreter’s analysis is based only on the grammatical sense of the writing.” The choice of the definition is ruled by the apparent grammar in the sentence, and the grammar can be perverted by the fraudulent thinking of the interpreter. Many a word in the dictionary has multiple entries, based on the word’s multiple grammar senses. In one sentence, we know that identical words, have altogether different grammar senses. same words: To [adverb] serve [verb] a complaint is grammatically different “than being my turn to [preposition] serve [noun] the volleyball.” Therefore, to bridle the thinking of a judge, or other potential opponents, the rule of logic is placed at the first step, because the goal is to force the interpreter into a position of choosing the logical definition of a word, when multiple entries of a word exist in the dictionary. We also want logical thinking to be used throughout the process, not after irreparable damage is done to the meanings of the words.

It may be logical to assume that to provide definition (dictionary) of your words ensures the definate meanings you are seeking to convey.

: The Rule of Usage : “Words and usages are rendered according to the usages of the place, society, and popular life.” In law, litigants are concerned with legal usages first, then with common usages. In the previous rule, we have decided upon which word entry to use. Now we are deciding upon which usage, inside the definition entry. For instance, is the correct usage coming from the definition’s entry number 1, 1(a),2, 2(a),or 2(b)?We render our decision based upon how the words are normally used, in our case beginning with the word’s legal sense. Once no special legal usage is discovered, then we consider the place, society and popular life of the culture where the writing took place.

It may be logical to assume clear definition by dictionarying your words and placing them with the appropriate prepositions and articles will define useage.

: The Rule of Context: Rule of Context. “Respectively, words, terms, phrases, sentences, paragraphs, [elements] etc., are understood in all of their point and force from the connection to their preceding elements, and from the connection to their following elements.” Now we are expanding our thought process outwardly to connect previous words to their following words; to connect previous phrases with following phrases; to connect previous sentences with following sentences; to connect previous paragraphs to following paragraphs; to connect previous chapters with following chapters; to connect previous books or volumes with following books or volumes. This technique is effective for interpreting any writing.

It may be logical to assume command of the context of your documenting by identifying clearly and quantumly the very point of the matter. The initial point identified by quantum language is the volition of what 'is'. The only verb used in quantum is "is" and its' plural 'are'.

: The Rule of Historical Background: “The only interest in the past is a general understanding of the history of the life and society of the writer. Interpreters are interested in the light the historical background throws upon the present.” In his book, Mr. Duty interjects a little plug for using case law. Case law is examined in another chapter to show its weaknesses. For now, just remember that in the Universal-Legal-Technology cases, the interpreter is forbidden from using the “rule of historical background” as an excuse to interject “case law,” since all cases are sui generis. [Sui generis means unique, with different circumstances and timing, with different parties, juries, judges, lawyers, all who vary in experience and motivation.]

It may be logical to assume that by using the quantum one dissolves historicity by virtue of communicating what 'is' is always in the now time moment.

: The Rule of Precedent: “Interpreters must not violate the known usages of a word and invent another for which there is no precedent.” In the Universal-Legal-Technology cases, the legislature is obligated to track litigation in the system — codifying and publishing broad and common customs, closing unforeseen loopholes, correcting mistakes, and clarifying the ambiguities in the legislator’s laws.

It maybe logical to assume that the use of quantum math proof of claim is the primary precedent.

: The Rule of Unity: “The parts of a document are to be construed with reference to the significance of the whole.” This rule brings any inconsistencies to the surface. Every day we find inconsistencies in testimony, or inconsistencies in law. How these inconsistencies are handled depend upon where they are found. In the chapter on the civil law versus case law, we will see that if any passages of law that conflict with one another, the legislature, not the judge, has the obligation to correct the error. Like computer programmers, the legislators have the responsibility to get the “bugs” out. Once the law is written well, litigation concerning the inconsistency is eliminated.

It may be logical to assume that quantum is the template for unity. As in math there may only be one correct answer and infinite incorrect answers.

: The Rule of Inference: The last step of the process is the drawing of the inference. "We reason and derive the inference from the given fact or premise." The inference is the conclusion, based on the evidence generated by the first seven steps.

It may be logical to assume that to infer what ' is ' may be surveyed and judged in the moment.

: Subjective and Objective: interpretation is also affected by these states of being.

It may be logical to assume that the reason a matter exists important enough to come to quantum defining, that it is in fact subjective in nature, though is brought under the objective lens of the quantum syntax so to be dealt with objectively.

"no-one ever went to war over a maths problem" -: David-Wynn: Miller.
"Judges are only allowed to do operations and procedures"

In math there is one correct answer and an infinite selection of incorrect answers. In 'fact' there is but one interpretation, in fiction there is infinite interpretation. In a fiction court the dude with the biggest stick defines the interpretation.

For the harvest of the people is with the fraudulent-conveyance of the language by the governing-system.

For the governing-system of the fraudulent-conveyance of the language is with the people by the harvest.

The use of language by we humans creates a geometry of cognition for the user. Studies of language-use has shown that different geometric perspectives exist with different languages. Some languages provide 3-dimensional geometric cognition, some languages provide 2-dimensional geometric cognition, some languages are right-brain oriented, and some languages are left-brain oriented. It is alleged that the use of the quantum language interface will provide a geometric cognition which will survive translation from one language to another to another and back again. The deliberate use of prepositions to place noun value implies solidifying into place as a geometric snapshot, where all facts are frozen in a now time block of ice, open for examination by all, with no immunity for any involved in the matter, no one may hide and exists forever in this now-time state untill settled and closed.

The mind boggling notion of "Quantum Language" offers a simple guarantee of mathematically certifying the degree of correctness to the substance of the words you require for the bonding in your contracting. The quantum sentence offers a syntax where we may present our each and every contracting sentence as one idea, one oath and one court. Each sentence standing by itself with correct command in the now time jurisdiction; each clearly defining cause, effect, volition, possessor and authority; each clearly defining motivation intent and who is responsible, each capable of being mathematically correct both forward and backward; each wearing clear integrity of interpretation. The quantum language properly formatted is the highest degree of literate correctness and may be applied to any language.

Maxim - As it is written so shall it be-

- so if it is mathematically correct it will be correct, if it is mathematically incorrect it is incorrect.

for a quick look at this mind boggle lets define the components

For the = certifying of the Known-cause of the sentence, the noun is certified by pre-position and articulated by article (For = 5 the = 6).

of the = certifying of the known-effect or terms of the cause of this sentence is = is the volition of this sentence and is there fore what moves, gives action and is the VERB

(2) the verb 'is' gives volition-- as this is what is; is the thinking. The locomotive of this sentence as a train.

with the = certifying the known-possessor of the cause by the= certifying the known-authority behind the possessor of the cause of the effect of this sentence.

all the words carrying the value (7) are the substance of the sentence, are facts, are the known, are the noun, are the cargo of the train, the locomotive is the verb and the preposition phrases are the carriages defining and carrying the cargo.

To enjoy standing one must have substance, to understand substance is to clearly define and display position in space, time, meaning and purpose. The (5)_(pre)position, for, of, with, by-- then articulated by the lodio of the (6)article -a, an, the, that, this, these--- certifies the substance of the known/(7)noun/fact.

Is or are as the only verb found in a quantum sentence allows remaining in the now time jurisdiction of being in reality. Avoiding all past or future tense pre-positions or words allows also being in the fact of the now, where meaning is relevant always to the moment as it is being addressed. Avoidance of all modifying words -adverbs, adjectives and pronouns allows mathematical correctness of interpretation. Notice words with suffix -ed are past-tense.

The format of --567 567 2 567 567 position-lodio-fact, position-lodio-fact, Verb, position-lodio-fact, position-lodio-fact is the smallest quantum sentence one can construct. To make larger sentences simply add more 567's as this group of numbers designate a prepositional phrase and only one verb to a sentence, one locomotive to a train. To break from this pattern will lose the quantum ability of the sentence.

Any sentence in quantum format may be read forward and backward and maintain meaning. The cause and the authority are opposites and the effect and the possessor are opposites.

Notice the hyphen allows the construction of a compound-noun , so the syntax of the sentence is not modified by the extra word.

Notice any other numbers found in the sentence like an adverb adjective or pronoun past or future tense removes quantum fidelity from the syntax.

Notice the preposition To is future-tense.

The simple syntax for the applying to any sentence.

In summary we could say we as a witnessing judge of our shared reality, we are seeking to identify with quantum language a measurable means of mathematically gauging the written substance of a matter. In a quantum sentence we are using the prepositional phrase to clearly identify a noun, a known, a fact which is to be correctly under-stood as the sub-stance as the ground as the matter of the standing. So under-stand = sub-stance = matter = fact = known = noun. After having identified the substances to be judged we require to gauge the dynamic interaction and its harmonious current. The judge's first job, identify substance, step two gauge harmony of tensions of commerce and correct if necessary.

Here is an example of the use by miller himself from his website. The use of capitals is said to be 'shout' so to shout out the law is to cannon.

As a footnote we may use the quantum as a verbal sudoko so to assist the revealing of the operations of our language, the geometric cognitions we wear in our relationship with communications with all our world and may assist revealing agendas which may be hidden in contracts and claims. Wynn: Miller suggests we are at the mercy of our system because of the low literacy ability we exist with.

For the geometry of the cognition is with the language by the use.

For the crimes of the use of the fraudulent-conveyance of the language is with the witnessing

From the Universal Legal Technology Present tense

is very important, since “the law is constantly speaking, at every moment.”

Therefore the law is speaking right now, in the present tense. What, then, is the effect of a law written in the future tense? Future tense words are for depicting “actions not yet done.” Future tense wordings like shall place the law clearly into a future point in time. Incidentally, the word to can also be construed as future tense. When a designated future point in time comes into the present tense, and at that point we read the same future-tense words again, the future is still in the future, not in this present time. The future is never to come into the present tense. The present and the future are mutually exclusive terms. Remember, the law is always speaking, and a future tense law always applies to the future.

Since the law is presently speaking, and is speaking in the future tense, there is no law in the courts.

Again, the present tense is very important, since “the law is constantly speaking, at every moment.”

Since the law is speaking right now in the present tense, any present tense legal verbiage says that we have both rights, duties, and obligations — now, right now. The present tense law is enforceable. Any judge playing favorites in the court room through omission or commission, or who is manipulating a present tense law, is involved in the commission of treason.

Past tense

past tense sentences are used for “actions completed before the current writing,” and are useful for suggesting an action is “finished and cannot be changed.”

Past tense also shows evidence of a corporation.

A “federation” is by definition an unincorporated entity, but a “federated” entity is incorporated.

A “union” of states is not a corporate entity, but that the “United” States is a corporation.

Still, other than showing that a corporate structure is in existence, are there any other effects of the past tense that could possibly affect the outcome of a case?

Unfortunately the literal interpretation of the statement "I was injured" means that an injury existed sometime in the past, but no longer exists.

In short, there is no injury, and therefore no justiciability, since the cause of the action no longer exists.

We have no standing to bring a case

Pronouns

"Pronouns can be ambiguous." "Pronouns are semantically degenerate. That is, while they contain some information, they do not contain enough on their own to name the individual to which they are intended to refer.

Thus, pronouns are a natural source of uncertainty in interpretation."⁵⁴ Entire sections of advice existing in traditional legal writing texts about pronouns can be deleted by simply eliminating pronouns all together.

COMMON LAW—existence exists; and a primary truth is we are not alone, we share existence with 7 billion of our own kind, and trillions of others creatures and life forms. Having physical parameters set with natural law and then acknowledging divine law, we seek as a collective to enjoy our living peace and shared abundance. We have as humans experiencing existence fundamental requirements for our enlightened survival. Common law is con-sensus common sense seeking a united vision for what may constitute a good stay here in reality. Common law is the unwritten acknowledgment of our sovereign human rights, duties and responsibilities. Common law is a higher law to statute law.

Correct use has us use law to compel us to protect the life, the liberty, the rights and property of a living soul, a sovereign human, so we may all co create in harmony and balance. The law exists to serve and protect! Breaking of law is easily identified as hurting or harming anothers life liberty or property, or to use deceit or fraud in your contracts. The undermining of the integrity of the bonds that hold our world together.

Our common law in australia has grown and developed from great brittain, it has been a dramatic play between the spiritual quest of unity consciousness and the separated ego. The sovereign rights of the individual expressed in the laws of the anglo saxons or the ancient irish with 'Brehon law' represents the integrity of the wholeness of the greater organism of humanity and its inherent need to protect and preserve the sovereignty of each and every unique and individual living cell of its beingness. These ancient laws were auricular, they were spoken into existance and passed from generation to generation in oral tradition. The view was that real law is spoken into life, is cannoned or sounded or voiced into reality. Restitution rather than punishment was prescribed for wrongdoings. These laws existed in the absence of courts and police force and showed that the laws were respected by the peoples.

The forces of the greedy self interested separated ego and the laws of the Romans, the Normans etc is now personified in the religious/corporate/government/banking system and its quest to have as much of the common wealth as possible for themselves while holding the rest of the fellow cells in oppressed commercial captivity/servitude. The notion of empire and its ego need to centralize power and control all for the few at the expence of the many. The notion of empire battles the natural law of decentralized unique and individual sovereign guilds sharing goodness. Diversity is stability as reflected in natural systems (rainforest). This battle may be viewed in the play between our being conscious thinking beings or unthinking ignorant masses held in servitude to the civil/ admiralty/canon law seeking to dominate or hide common law/ equity; separated ego versus unity consciousness. In short the ignorant masses at the mercy of the intelligent idiots.

STATUTORY LAW. -Law set down or declared or legislated by an authority; law set as a statement of subject matter giving definition and clarity to the regulation and management of; and seeking to contribute rhythm and harmony to, the exercising of common law as contract. All statutes are created by some governing authority and exist only by agreement with those effected. A contract between two energies! The law is to serve and protect, and if a statute does not qualify as a true law serving to protect our rights, liberty, life and property then it may only apply to us should we accept offer to contract with it. A statute is a rule or a regulation/stipulation used by a society for balance and harmony, and carries the force of law through the mutual consent of the living souls who together make the said society. Our statutes require our consent to have a power over us, by virtue of the contracts we willingly and knowingly engage. We require to follow and deconstruct our acts of parliament and the consequent statutory laws to know if the statutes which direct our existence are issued in the balance of common law equity, or serve civil admiralty domination and control. Together as a community we will to ponder this carefully.

Let us summarise the law here, in spirit we come from who knows where, and in entering reality we come into duality, a constant play of opposites which in essence require to commerce to find balance and harmony. The state of our conditions and circumstance is the constitution from which we may engage reality and in our physical constitution we may stand upon common ground, the common sense the common law, which is of the culture of which we find ourselves within, culture is the ways and reasons we do things. We do things in relation to condition, circumstance and tradition and to keep it true to the moment we balance it with the impartial notion of equity. Together common law and equity make a team, common law the tradition and ways of the past and equity the rationality of the moment. For an enlightened unfolding for all humanity how may we view the motivation and intent of civil, admiralty, or canon law so to not be as tools of domination and control, but become more a reflection of exactly how we are all thinking? How do they serve our collective enlightenment??

Together we have the choice at any moment to stop the way we live this collective modern life. We have the ability to change the decisions of values aspired to, the notions we hold steadfast and have manifest as our life adventure; and then give our selves permission to nurture and broaden the imagining of what our beautiful world may be. Should we choose that is, to make effort to imagine; find a balanced and a good for all notions; then share vision and selflessly contribute effort to the reality of living in total peace and harmony.

The Ancients suggest the trick is in being selfless, when we come to experience I-ness, the I in the body reading or hearing these words will come to realize there is but only one I in the universe.

Moral—the externalised reasons concerned with or relating to our human behaviour, especially the distinction between good and bad, or right and wrong behaviour. Inner aspiration to the greater good, the fine balance of unity.

Ethics—the philosophical emission of the moral values of human conduct, and or the living out of the rules and principles that represent our most noble human conduct and imagining. The human glowing of the benchmarks or touchstones of truths learnt from nature and cognised from divinity, that ensure the enduring good of all. The ethos is the glow of the soul and it is worn first as the etheric as a first shadow of the ethos the second shadow being our human form. So we may say ethic is that glow of goodness that emits from a living soul into the shared lifescape of us all and is either dimmed or amplified by the moral code that has been taken on by the being, the external reasons used to plot one's course and share the way.

Virtue— quality or practice of moral excellence or rightness, a value in its more abstract form. Prudence, justice, fortitude, temperance, faith, hope and charity. All the goodness received and expressed in deed and action which would have our shared existence unfold in a kind and magic way for us all.

Ideals—are balanced desires, dancing in collective harmony with our unfolding mystery, living life from beginning to end as a love affair with the mystery, forever in awe and wonder, passionately sharing the vision, living life as a total expression of fun and challenge.

Values—are ideals held in our conscious, seeking to be acknowledged and aspired to, visions of ways of being that fill the heart and soul with a wealth of feeling that would have all the physical riches and powers in our world seem insignificant.

"Valor, from valere, to be well or strong -- strong, in life or valiant;
strong, for life (if a thing), or valuable.

To be "valuable," therefore, is to "avail towards life." A truly valuable or availing thing is that which leads to life with its whole strength.

In proportion as it does not lead to life, or as its strength is broken, it is less valuable; in proportion as it leads away from life, it is unvaluable or malignant. "

John Ruskin

Prudence—caution in actions and their consequences, discretion or alertness, care taken in the management of ones resources and consideration for ones own interests and time. Quietly, secretly nurturing the art of living in effortless simplicity and abundance.

Justice—principle of fairness that like cases should be treated alike. To deal with somebody or some thing correctly and completely. To find a balance of unity for disharmonious interaction and communication, dispute and conflict between living souls playing life in this game.

Fortitude—strength and firmness of mind, resolute endurance. Hold the vision Temperance—restraint or moderation especially in yielding to ones appetites or desires. Seeing our self in its ego adventure, and experiencing our i-ness. I am in this body reading or hearing these words, there is only one I.....

Faith—strong unshakable belief in something especially without proof or evidence. Our most productive emotion (Napoleon Hill) . Faith is the substance of things hoped for the evidence of things unseen (Charles Haanel) Then there is knowing.

Hope—feeling or desire for something and confidence in the possibility of its fulfilment. We all see the shortcomings of mankind, and we all have access to the reality of our simple participation in making change, when we find the courage

Charity—kindly and lenient attitude toward people , love of ones fellow m

Rectitude---uprightness in principles and conduct; correctness as of judgment.

Now a few more tools to use in your work, a list of values to ponder.

Summary

Now there is a lot to ponder here, and what we are endeavouring to do is to look at the component parts or building blocks of the structure of our character. It is quite some task to identify with all that exists within our being, and what values are identified with our opinions and attitudes. So in this exercise we are concerned only with searching the supermarket shelves for those values that serve our wildest dreams and fantasies. More will be explored in other modules.

So far we have in our journal a story describing how we see ourselves in the situation where beyond the confines of time, ability and money we may access all we can imagine as our ultimate potential. What are our areas of expertise, what and where is it that allows us to experience fully our passion, who are our lovers and how do we relate to the people of our world, and what are the things we desire, the toys or tools required to achieve the dream. What is the structure of the character we are, in the story we are writing, the values and the strengths you see as ideal.

There are as many hours of thought and journal entry here as you may wish to make, what is important is to spend the time to think, imagine and dream these points clearly, for they are the foundation for the modules which follow. `

Wizardry

To be a wise and is to become someone who is wise

To be a wizard is to love wisdom wisdom is being in the the dom-ain of the wise or to be with the dom-inance of wise

The love of wisdom is Philo = love Sophia = wisdom

So to be a wizard is to be a philosopher

So to be a wizard requires to come to know and feel the art of still ness.

The art of carefully and clearly articulating dreams.

The Art of Preference Defining.

The Art of Notion Trading.

The Art of mood and paradigm wrestling.

The Art of being in the moment .

The Art of thinking objectively into the past and future.

The Art of feeling and being the sovereign authority in your own life adventure.

sovereign authority is the active cultivation of inherent divinity.

Divinity = most magnificent potential

Wizards know the difference between that which we may control and transform and that which we may not.

We have no control over our birth and upbringing, what other people think and do, the weather and the laws of nature and universe.

We have control over our assumptions and ideas, our beliefs and desires, our goals and expectations, the notions we ponder and all the mind tools that furnish our inner world.

All that we may use to construct our paradigms.

All that we may use to know our world and live in it.

To play with our inner programming is potently powerful and the most enjoyable adventure a being learning the truth of who he or she is may take on .

A wizard is cultivating mastery of the inner world, the world that underlies this world.

Now to be a wizard we require working our way into being one.

Wizards know that our planet is run on the power of words

Words are the currency of this world

Wordsmiths may be the wealthy and know the art of having direction and out come in the words they choose to use

Harry Potter

Harry Potter is the most notable wizard of our present age and he has us realise there are Wizards and there are Muggles in our world. Wizards are those who find access to their inner world and develop mastery of that realm and may affect their external world. Of course the wizards require to comb their shadows and come to terms with the darkness within so to access their powers. The muggles are those who have forgotten the magic and limitless depths of our amazing universe we all share and indeed are, and are bound to the material external infinity.

Harry Potter's secret power is his Mother's Love and is symbolic of our species remembering we as a species all have aboriginality to our planet, all have somewhere within us earth honouring indigenous tribe genes in our trillion cell community which house our awareness. We are remembering to value fully and equally the yin aspect of our species, we are remembering the magic we may access by our healing the rift in our genders.

Ridiculous Notion no.2

THE DREAMING

The dreaming spoken of by the Australian Originie has a pure connection to the nature of our Mother the Earth, and a beautiful simplicity that allows one to feel a part of the universe we all share and indeed are.

It has been said that the Australian (Ab)originals have been living in Australia for 40,000 - 100,000 years, and when White Man first invaded found a very simple people; and immediately proceeded to state these people were primitive savages and of lower intelligence. White Man never even began to acknowledge their completely different application to reality. To live as all the other creatures in nature with the elements and with little or no impact upon the environment, they never over populated or did they inflict their intellect upon the landscape, to alter or change. In reflection who of us have then displayed a true intelligent harmony and communication with nature and therefore god, mmmm who really is the savage?

All humanity has enjoyed connection to the dreaming, though at some point in our evolution, many of us have lost our connection. Buried in the unconscious part of our being the dreaming lives and affects each and every life. The mystical side of mankind is the dreaming, the feminine side or inner Goddess. Modern western civilization has chosen a male god, and has a long history of subduing the feminine side of our culture, actually treating its female side less than equally. We can observe suppressing women on the one hand and denying the goddess, while on the other hand worshiping a substitute goddess called the economy or some religiosity. Might it be that in the foundations of male god religions and the male dominated governing structures there is an unconscious fear of the power of the feminine. And hence our collective questionable attitudes, our being out of touch with appreciation for the beauty of our genders, and respect for our Mother the Earth. It has been said if you suppress your feminine side you cut off access to your intuition and become reliant upon instinct, aligned with lower consciousness, isolated from our highest expressions of love, knowledge, wisdom and goodness. Actions of Patriarchal religions and male dominated governing structures are an example of the mine field of delusions suppressing our feminine side may cause.

In our list of opposites we could call cleverness and dreaming two sides of the one coin, cleverness the yang attribute, or masculine, and dreaming, the yin or feminine. To live a balanced and harmonious adventure we require having the muscles of cleverness and dreaming equal in their strengths.

When connected to the mystical side of life we find access to our magick possibilities, and it is the muscles of imagination that gives us access to the strengthening of our dreaming. This exercise in module one has been a prompt to dream, it has also been a prompt to know thy self, and apply cleverness to your dreaming.

Now it is time to hurry up and take your time, as we have forever on both sides of us, And that is exactly how long you need to be around, to really claim that you are immortal.

In the words of a thirteen years young man, "to say that we only live once is like taking a boy to the video shop to get a computer game, and telling him to select only one game and play it, only one time."

sometimes you get what you sometimes you don't get what you want sometimes you get what you did not expect and with all these things you have no control from '1 giant leap : what about me'

IMMORTALITY TAKES FOREVER TO ACHIEVE
