

For your information

What to Wear: Smart Attire

From 5.30pm on board, we ask that you wear smart attire. This means smart collared shirts, evening tops, trousers, skirts and dresses. Jackets are optional. Of course, if you prefer to spend tonight in more relaxed attire, you can dress casually in the following venues: Lido Restaurant, Golden Lion, Casino, Café Caninthia, Garden Lounge and Yacht Club. Non-ripped jeans are appropriate in these venues, but please refrain from wearing shorts, sports attire, swim wear or sleeveless t-shirts outside of the gym, spa and deck spaces.

Alcohol policy

Guests under 21 years of age in US ports and territorial waters and under 19 years of age in Canadian ports and territorial waters are not permitted to purchase or consume alcohol on board. Please be aware that proof of age by means of government issued photographic identification, may be requested. Under age guests are also not permitted in the Yacht Club after 11.00pm.

Children's tea

Children's tea will be available today from 4.45pm until 5.30pm in the Lido Restaurant located on Deck 9, starboard side, accessed via Stairways B & C.

Glacier Bay National Park and Preserve Information

Welcome to Glacier Bay National Park and Preserve

A Glacier Bay National Park brochure and map has been delivered to your stateroom. Please use it to learn about the bay and follow our route. It includes excellent information on tidewater glaciers, whales, plants and animals in the bay.

National Park Service Rangers will be boarding Queen Elizabeth this morning.

Find the National Park Service Ranger Station in the Commodore Club on Deck 10, Forward, to check the latest itinerary and ask any questions you may have about Glacier Bay National Park and Preserve.

Enjoy the great outdoors. Nothing can compare to the sense of scale and magnificence of the massive ice wall and, if you are lucky, you may experience the incredible sound when it calves. For wildlife viewing be patient. Sharp-eyed guests have spotted brown bears, bald eagles, harbour seals, humpback whales and mountain goats before. Wildlife is abundant, be vigilant and you will be rewarded. If you have binoculars, we highly recommend using them.

Glacier Bay National Park and Preserve live commentary

There will be live commentary from the Bridge provided by the National Park Service Rangers as Queen Elizabeth navigates through Glacier Bay National Park and Preserve. This will be broadcast on all open decks and public areas, Decks 2 & 3. You can also listen to announcements on your stateroom television by selecting stateroom TV, channel 41.

Queen Elizabeth is expected to greet the National Park Service Rangers at 8.00am with commentary throughout the day from approximately 10.00am until 2.00pm.

Glacier Bay National Park and Preserve schedule

- 8.00am Queen Elizabeth Welcomes the Glacier Bay National Park Service Rangers.
- 8.30am Ranger Morning Welcome - Commodore Club, Deck 10, Forward.
- 10.00am Live Ranger Intermittent Scenic Commentary Begins (until approximately 2.00pm).
- 10.00am Park Information Desk Open (until approximately 2.00pm).
- 10.00am Alaska Geographic Park Store - Commodore Club, Deck 10, Forward (until 3.00pm).
- 3.00pm Glacier Bay Junior Ranger Programme - Yacht Club, Deck 10, Forward.

Please visit the Ranger Station in the Commodore Club on Deck 10 for glacier viewing times.

Important environmental information

Please join us in our commitment to keep Glacier Bay pristine and beautiful for future visitors and generations. To do your part, we ask that you:

- Please do not throw anything overboard.
- Take extra care that loose clothing, hats, napkins, tissues, handkerchiefs, maps and other items do not blow overboard.
- Do not feed the wildlife or birds.
- Avoid disturbing the wildlife.
- Please respect your fellow guests' experience of the majestic place.
- The use of drones (unmanned aerial vehicles) is prohibited in Glacier Bay National Park.
- To prevent face masks from going overboard, take extra caution when removing them outdoors.

Cunard has established a hotline to permit reporting of environmental concerns.

- By phone: In the US call +1-888-290-5105
- Internationally: Call +1-305-406-5863
- Online: Visit www.cunard.com/compliance.com

Scenic viewing

In order to enable you to enjoy the scenic viewing, we will be opening the forward area of Decks 5 and 6 from 10.00am until 5.00pm. Please note that this area is normally restricted to crew only and that you will be sharing this space with our crew in their personal time. With this in mind, please be mindful of raised thresholds. Decks 5 and 6 forward areas can be accessed from Stairway A, using the port and starboard guest corridors to lead you forward.

No disposable items are to be taken outside whilst cruising Glacier Bay.

Glacier Bay National Park and Preserve, Alaska, USA

Arrival time: 8.00am | Departure time: 6.00pm

From the Navigator

Glacier Bay National Park and Preserve, a large natural area in southeastern Alaska, United States, on the Gulf of Alaska. It was proclaimed a national monument in 1925, established as a national park and preserve in 1980, and designated a UNESCO World Heritage site in 1992. The park and preserve cover an area of 5,129 square miles (13,287 square kilometres) and includes Glacier Bay itself, the northern, southern, and western slopes of Mount Fairweather (15,300 feet - 4,663 metres), and the United States portion of the Alek River. Adjoining the park to the north is Tatshenshini-Aleek Wilderness Provincial Park in British Columbia, Canada. Among the most notable features of the park are the great tidewater glaciers.

With snow-capped peaks, abundant wildlife and shimmering glaciers, it is no wonder Glacier Bay National Park is the crowning jewel of Alaska's Inside Passage. There is so much to take in on a Glacier Bay National Park cruise, it is hard to know where to begin. Towering mountains, gargantuan icebergs and majestic glaciers stretch as far as the eye can see, disappearing onto the horizon in every direction. It is a thrilling sight to experience from the deck of a cruise ship, or snuggled under a blanket in the warmth of your stateroom balcony, as you silently watch the world go by.

Enjoy your day in Glacier Bay National Park and Preserve

In order to provide a premium experience in Glacier Bay, we do not schedule any events or activities that might distract our guests from the views and commentary.

National Park Service Rangers Presentation

Join the National Park Service Rangers in an informative presentation about the wonders of Glacier Bay. Following this presentation, the Rangers will be out on deck with guests. At this time, the ship is typically passing through an area of rich marine wildlife. Rangers will make announcements to advise guests so they can participate.

Visiting Alaska Scenic Highlights

Glacier highlights between 11.00am and 2.30pm. Lower Bay transit is good for wildlife from 4.30pm to 6.30pm.

A Note from the Naturalist

The Glacier Bay National Park and Preserve encompasses over 3.3 million acres of true wilderness. The park is recognised as a Biosphere Reserve and a UNESCO World Heritage Site.

Within the park, a multitude of tidewater glaciers flow from snow-topped mountain ridges into glassy waters and wildlife thrives throughout the bay.

Did you know?

A population of over 300 brown bears make their home in the upper reaches of Glacier Bay. Look out for them along the remote shorelines of Tarr Inlet.

Protecting Alaska

Cunard is committed to the conservation and preservation of the wilderness areas we explore during our Alaska season. For this reason, we kindly ask that when the outside decks become breezy, our guests are especially vigilant, and help us ensure that nothing is blown over the sides of the ship as we sail through these sensitive areas.

Glacier Bay: America's best idea

Cunard congratulations! You have found your way to Glacier Bay National Park, just one of more than 400 there is that are managed by the National Park Service. Dedicated as a National Monument in 1925 and upgraded to National Park status in 1980, Glacier Bay has been a destination for visitors cruising on ships since the 1890s.

The Park idea

When President John Wallace Steiwer called national parks "the best idea we ever had. Absolutely American, absolutely democratic, this reflects our best rather than our worst," creating a National Park Service was not easy. In the 19th century, the idea of preserving special natural and cultural places in public ownership ran contrary to the prevailing idea of nature as a commodity. But as wilderness receded and remnants of prehistoric civilisations and revolutionary landmarks were lost, outstanding examples of our nation's heritage needed to be protected.

The First Parks

It began in 1864, when the federal Government gave Yosemite Valley to the state of California to be "held for public use, resort, and recreation... for all time." Eight years later, Congress created the world's first national park, Yellowstone, as "a public park or pleasure ground for the benefit and enjoyment of the people." More large western parks followed. Though without funding, or even one employee, it was up to Army cavalry units to develop and protect these fledgling parks.

Birth of a National Park Service

In 1916, Congress created the National Park Service with the mission "to conserve the scenery and the natural and historic objects and the wild life therein and to provide for the enjoyment of the same in such manner and by such means as will leave them unimpaired for the enjoyment of future generations." Since then the American people have entrusted the National Park Service with the care of their most special places.

Today there are more than 400 sites covering more than 84 million acres in every state plus American Samoa, Guam, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands. These areas include national parks, monuments, battlefields, historic sites, recreation areas, seashores and scenic rivers and trails. As a testament to success, over 300 million visitors enjoy the parks each year. In preserving America's special places, national parks help maintain the nation's identity for Americans and for visitors from around the world.

Parks, "America's best idea" tell America's story and connect us to our history, our environment, ourselves, and each other.

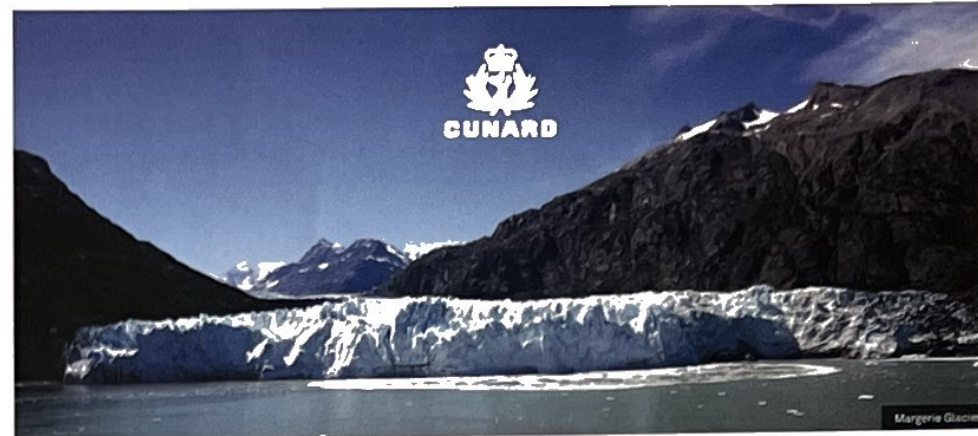

FIND YOUR PARK

We invite you to join us in celebrating the achievements of the past and looking to the future as we kick off a second century of stewardship for America's national parks and communities. While in Glacier Bay visit with the park rangers to learn about this place and become inspired by the park's limitless opportunities for reflection, awe, and wonder. Learn about the variety of ways to experience Glacier Bay's wilderness and to connect with the natural world. There may be other national parks on your Alaska itinerary (such as Klondike, Gold Rush, Sitka, Denali, or Kenai Fjords). Explore the parks near your home and spread the word. Connect future generations to parks by helping youth explore careers with the national park service, volunteering, advocating for what you find special and sharing your park stories with others at FindYourPark.com.

Glacier Bay

Welcome to Glacier Bay National Park and Preserve

When Captain George Vancouver first set eyes on the small five-mile inlet that was Glacier Bay in 1794, he described a "sheet of ice as far as the eye could distinguish." By the time naturalist John Muir visited in 1879 with a group of the native Tlingit, who call the bay their ancestral homeland, the ice had retreated enough to begin exposing one of the world's most majestic wildernesses. His poetic descriptions of the area have been inspiring visitors to Glacier Bay National Park and Preserve ever since.

Towers of ice

You are one of the fortunate travellers to see this incredible place for yourself. There is no place quite like it on earth – over 32 million acres of forest, inlet and shore, mountain peaks rising over 15,000 feet, and of course, the namesake glaciers. Tidewater glaciers are great rivers of ice that flow to the sea and calve large chunks of ice into the ocean. The bay boasts three such tidewater glaciers, including famous Margerie Glacier – one of Alaska's most photographed features, and also one of the state's more active glacial faces. And if you're lucky, you may be treated to one of nature's grandest displays – the thunderous crack of a calving tidewater glacier.

Untamed nature

You're also likely to see some of the bay's most celebrated residents – abundantly present wildlife, ranging from bald eagles and puffins to sea mammals like sea otters, seals and humpback whales. Those training a keen eye on the shores could even be treated to the rare sighting of a brown bear, moose or mountain goat.

We hope you enjoy your stay in the bay. A small team of Park Rangers will be on board the entire time to share insights and stories of Glacier Bay National Park.

Keep Glacier Bay beautiful

Please join us in our commitment to keep Glacier Bay pristine and beautiful for future visitors and generations. To do your part, we ask that you

- Please do not throw anything overboard
- Take extra care that loose clothing, hats, napkins, maps and other items do not blow overboard
- Do not feed the wildlife or birds
- Avoid disturbing wildlife
- Please respect your fellow guests' experience of this majestic place
- Please note that the use of drones (unmanned aerial vehicles) is prohibited in Glacier Bay National Park

Glacier Bay rangers' top ten questions

1. Why does the ice look blue?

When light hits highly compacted glacier ice, long wavelength colours (reds) are absorbed, while short wavelength colours (blues) reflect back through the ice to your eyes.

2. Does the bay freeze in the winter?

No, the combination of wind, tidal fluctuation, and moderate maritime temperatures keep the bay from freezing over.

3. Can anybody bring a ship in here?

Vessels are welcome to visit Glacier Bay. To protect park resources and enhance visitor experiences, The National Park Service limits the number of vessels. Two cruise ships may enter each day.

4. Where are the whales?

Humpback whales are most often seen in the lower portion of Glacier Bay, typically close to shore. Look for their "spouts" hanging in the air, and remember, even whales can look small from a distance.

5. How high is the face of Margerie Glacier?

The face of Margerie Glacier is constantly changing. Recently, Margerie Glacier was documented as one mile wide, with a face that is about 200 feet above the waterline.

6. Why is the Grand Pacific Glacier so dirty?

Avalanches, rock slides, tributary glaciers, and the scouring of the valley have caused an accumulation of dirt and rock on the glacier's surface. Also, the diminishing size of the glacier consolidates the rocks, so that the glacier looks more like land than ice.

7. How deep is Glacier Bay?

Very deep! It was carved out by a glacier and filled in with saltwater as the glacier retreated, creating a fjord. Much of the bay is over 1,000 feet deep (304m).

8. What are the chances of seeing the glacier calve?

The chances are fairly good. These glaciers can move forward over five feet a day! Yet glacier calving is unpredictable. A watchful eye is necessary to catch changes in the glacier's face.

9. What's the weather like here?

It rains a lot – 70 inches a year near park headquarters. May and June are the sunniest, and it is usually not as cloudy near the glaciers as in the lower portion of the bay. The constantly changing moods and quality of the light are part of Glacier Bay National Park's scenic splendour.

10. Is climate change affecting Glacier Bay's glaciers?

Scientists who observe Earth's climate have documented warming temperatures globally. Decades of data show that Alaska has warmed more than twice as fast as the rest of the earth, causing dramatic changes across the state. Of the more than 100,000 glaciers in the state, 95% are currently thinning, stagnating, or retreating. More importantly, the rate of thinning is increasing. Glacier Bay's glaciers follow this trend.

Ranger suggestions for a spectacular day

Here are some helpful hints for maximising your enjoyment of the pristine paradise of Glacier Bay National Park.

- Enjoy the beautiful Glacier Bay map that was delivered to your stateroom. It includes excellent information on tidewater glaciers, whales, plants and animals in the bay.
- Take advantage of the extensive array of books on Glacier Bay and Alaska in our on board Library.
- Visit the on board Ranger Station at the Alaska Outpost in the Garden Lounge, check the latest itinerary, and plan to attend presentations. It's your opportunity to talk to a Park Ranger and ask questions you may have about the national park. Read your Daily Programme for times and location.
- Get outside on the open decks – especially during your visit at the glacier. Nothing can compare to the sense of scale and magnificence of the massive ice wall, and the incredible sound when it calves.
- Watch the National Park Service videos "Glacier Bay: Forever Wild" and "Beneath the Reflections" on your stateroom TV before or after our visit to the bay.
- Encourage your youngsters to join the Junior Ranger programme, and to pick up activity booklets available at the youth centre. Complete an activity booklet and earn their own Junior Ranger badge!
